Holt Biology: Mendel and heredity, 2003 Alzheimer Disease: The Changing View Robert Katzman, Katherine Bick, 2000-05-22 This book details how Alzheimer Disease went from being an obscure neurologic diagnosis to a household word The words of those responsible for this revolution are the heart of this book Dr Robert Katzman and Dr Katherine Bick leaders in Alzheimer research and policy making interview the people responsible for this awakening of public consciousness about Alzheimer Disease from 1960 to 1980 They speak with the scientists public health officials government regulators and concerned relatives and activists responsible for taking this neurodegenerative disease out of the back wards through the halls of Congress and on to the front page The reader will learn how the explosive increase in research funding and public awareness came about how physicians and psychiatrists established diagnostic criteria how drugs were developed that offer hope for sufferers and how the Alzheimer s Association was born Written in the words of those responsible for the widespread recognition of this neurodegenerative disease The authors are recognised as leaders in Alzheimer research and policy making Jukes-Edwards: A Study in Education and Heredity Albert E. Winship, 2019-12-02 In Jukes Edwards A Study in Education and Heredity Albert E Winship presents a groundbreaking exploration of the intricate interplay between nature and nurture using the infamous Jukes family as a case study to discuss broader societal implications of heredity on social morality and educational outcomes Written in the early 20th century Winship employs a meticulous blend of statistical analysis anecdotal evidence and socio political commentary to analyze the impact of familial legacies on individual potential The narrative is compelling and methodologically rigorous offering insights that resonate with contemporary discussions about the influence of genetic predisposition versus environmental factors in shaping human behavior and societal roles Albert E Winship was an esteemed educator and sociologist who contributed significantly to the understanding of social dynamics within educational contexts His fascination with the nexus of heredity and education arose from his commitment to progressive educational reforms wherein he sought to dismantle prevailing deterministic views His observations were informed not only by his academic background but also his engagement with various social research and policy endeavors aimed at bettering educational practices among disadvantaged populations This seminal work is highly recommended for scholars educators and policy makers interested in the historical context of education and social science Winship s incisive analysis remains remarkably relevant providing profound insights into the continuing debates surrounding heredity education and social responsibility The Heredity of Behavior Disorders in Adults and Children D.L. Pauls, S.M. Singer, S.G. Vandenberg, 2012-12-06 Current trends in morbidity suggest that by the beginning of the twenty first century psychiatric illness may become the most pressing problem in public health in many of the advanced countries As ably demonstrated by Vandenberg Singer and Pauls the principal identifiable etiology of the major psychiatric disorders is heredity if progress is to be made in prevention and treatment of these disorders it may have to come from improved understanding of their inheritance A relentless increase has been observed in the frequency of mood disorders primarily major depression but also manic depressive illness appearing earlier and more frequently in each age cohort born since approximately 1940 Because major depression is a recurrent disorder whose episodes increase in frequency with age the number of observed depressions can be expected to increase dramatically as these people reach middle and old age The rate of suicide has also increased enormously according to birth cohort Starting with people born around 1935 the rate of suicide between 15 and 19 years of age has increased more than 10 times from the earliest to the most recent birth cohorts What is not clear is if there will be a compensatory reduction in suicide rate as this cohort ages because people likely to commit suicide will have done so earlier or if this presages a general increase in suicide comparable to the increase in mood disorders and perhaps a function of them
