Reproductive Science and Integrated Conservation W. V. Holt, 2003 Reproduction is essential to the continuation and evolution of life on this planet and is therefore a centrally important process in the conservation of wildlife However reproductive mechanisms are well understood in only a handful of vertebrate species mostly domestic livestock and laboratory animals This means that attempts to develop and implement management policies for wildlife conservation and especially for endangered species that by definition are difficult to study are often based on poor data or no data at all In Reproductive Science and Integrated Conservation leading authorities provide glimpses of reproductive diversity in fishes amphibia reptiles birds and mammals Conservation plans are founded on the assumption that reproduction will be successful but what if it fails This book reviews the many factors that influence reproduction including genetics behaviour and nutrition and experts assess the potential conservation relevance of the recent rapid advances in reproductive technology and medicine The Science Teacher , 1971 Some issues are accompanied by a CD ROM on a selected topic EBOOK: Psychology: The Science of Mind and Behaviour, 4e Nigel Holt, Andy Bremner, Ed Sutherland, Michael Vlieg, Michael Passer, Ronald Smith, 2019-03-01 EBOOK Psychology The Science of Mind and Behaviour 4e Holt Science and Technology Holt Rinehart & Winston, Holt, Rinehart and Winston Staff, 2001-09 The Software Encyclopedia , 1988

Sharp,1986-01-01 The text is intended as supplementary reading for fisheries workers especially in developing countries who do not always have ready access to current literature on applied marine ecology An attempt is made to develop a wide range of concepts in a form that will hopefully encourage their incorporation into a practical decision making context The food web and associated trophic interactions form the principal theme in an approach that gives equal emphasis to qualitative as well as the less easily measured quantitative considerations An attempt is made to illustrate the consequences of the aggregated nature of much of marine production as well as the subsequent dispersal of production in space and time and how these processes affect the potential for economic harvest of commercial components of the ecosystem Separate sections touch on environmental influences on production relevant spatial and temporal scales for ecosystem analysis life history strategies diversity and stability the concepts of the ecological niche the community and the assemblage and outline some first steps towards quantifying production in marine ecosystems Different approaches to representing trophic and other interactions are discussed with examples from the literature Reference is made to several ecological subsystems in order to illustrate the main concepts presented These include the mangrove ecosystem the arcto boreal macrophyte community a mediterranean demersal fish assemblage and the oceanic ecosystem associated with high seas tuna stocks In practical terms it is concluded that the first and simplest approach to multispecies resource management is not necessarily the manipulation of individual food web components but the identification mapping and conservation of critical habitats especially centres of local production and their associated ecological dissipation structures *Catalog of Copyright Entries.
