

Handling the Titanic: The You/You Board

Classroom Groups use activity from each column. You will be completing four activities. When you finish with those, you should work on other activities on the board. Mark off the activity once it is completed. Look at all the choices in each column and choose the one that is appropriate for you.

	Problem Solving	Critical Thinking	Comprehension	Writing
Level 1	Read the article. How could the owners of the Titanic have made their ship safer? Find at least 3 different ways.	Think of words that would describe Ruth Barker and fill in a Circle Map. Remember, Ruth's name is in the middle, descriptors go in the larger circle and the sources of your knowledge go in the frame of reference box.*	Read the story and find 5 examples of cause and effect in Robert Ballard's sections and 5 in Ruth Barker's sections. Rank them as a flow map (or a web-flow map).*	How might Ruth Barker have described the disaster on the Titanic? Write a journal entry telling what happened from Ruth's point of view. Use details from the different resources you have read or seen.
Level 2	Watch the video, "Titanic Disaster" on YouTube. After learning as much as all the problems, write an explanation explaining which problem you think was biggest reason the sinking of the Titanic was such a disaster and how that problem could have been prevented.	Read the newspaper article about Millie's Case. How do you think she feels about selling her things? Have you ever had to give up something that was meaningful to you? Explain your situation and how it is similar and different to Millie's situation.	Read Is Any Right About pages 104-107. Then, use the cards to fill in the organization map poster. Ruth's heading has three details. Check your map with the answer key and write down any you missed and explain why.*	Finding the Titanic was big news. There were many news reports about the event. Imagine you got to interview Robert Ballard. What would you ask? How would he answer? Write 3 (or more) questions and his responses.*
Level 3	Read the article written by businessman, Gregory P. Smith. What lessons could you learn from the sinking of the Titanic? Write a paragraph explaining the lessons you could learn and why those would be important lessons for you.	Read the Spiegel from the story. Decide whether you think the wreckage from the Titanic should remain untouched or should be brought up. Explain your opinion clearly with well explained reasons in a paragraph or two.*	Read Is Any Right About pages 104-107. Then create an organizational outline that includes the main idea of each of the four sections and what the pictures show (except for the third section).	If Robert Ballard met Ruth Barker, what would their conversation be like? Write down a script of what each person may have said and asked the other.*
