The Time Of Our Singing By Richard Powers:

The Time of our Singing Richard Powers, 2003 There is no contemporary American writer quite like Richard Powers. It is rare to find a novel as intellectually and emotionally engaging as this. GUARDIAN: Formidable, rewarding. SUNDAY TIMES: An astonishing performance. NEW YORK TIMES: Jonah, Ruth, and Joseph are the children of mixed-race parents who aspire to raise them beyond the constraints of time and identity, immersing them in a world of song. However, they cannot shield them from the realities of the outside world. Forever, Jonah, a talented young tenor, finds that the opera world remains preoccupied with his race. Ruth, rejecting classical music, disappears instead into a life dedicated to activism and a new relationship. Over the years, Joseph, the middle child, a pianist and our narrator, struggles not only to stay connected to his siblings but also to carve out a future on his own. A powerful story of a tragedy of race in America. The Time of Our Singing is an enthralling, harrowing novel about the lives of choices of one family at the crossroads of identity. Richard Powers "The time of our singing" Hubert Zapf, 2010

The Time of Our Singing Richard Powers, 2004 This is a multifaceted novel about a supremely gifted and divided family set against the backdrop of postwar America. On Easter day 1939, at Marian Anderson's epochal concert on the Washington Mall, David Strom, a German Jewish immigrant scientist, meets Delia Daley, a young Philadelphia Negro studying to be a singer. Their mutual love of music draws them together, and against all odds and better judgment, they marry. They vow to raise their children beyond time, beyond identity, steeped in song. But their three children must survive America's brutal here and now. Jonah, Joseph, and Ruth grow up during the Civil Rights era, come of age in the violent 1960s, and live out adulthood in the racially retrenched late century. Jonah, the eldest, whose voice could make heads of state repent, follows a life in his parents' beloved classical music. Ruth, the youngest, chooses a militant activism and repudiates the white culture her brother represents. Joseph, the middle child and the narrator of this generational tale, struggles to remain connected to them both. This is a story of self-invention, allegiance, race, cultural ownership, the compromised power of music, and the tangled loops of time that rewrite all belonging.

The Time of Our Singing Richard Powers, 2003 In 1939, at Marion Anderson's great protest concert in Washington, a German Jewish emigre physicist and a young black contralto are brought together by concern over a lost child. They eventually marry and have three children, bringing them up in a hot-house atmosphere of music and maths, hoping to raise them to have no awareness of race as an issue in their lives. All three are musically talented, but they cannot be protected from the world for long. Jonah becomes a successful young tenor, but the world of opera can only accept him as a brilliant Negro singer. Joseph, our narrator, becomes a pianist and devotes his talents to the service of his brother's. Ruth turns her back on classical music, white music, and disappears on the run with her black husband, under suspicion of being a Black Panther. Powers brilliantly and devastatingly delineates the tragedy of race in America as it unfolds from the Civil Rights movement to Rodney King and Louis Farrakhan through the lives and choices of one family caught on the cusp of identities. This is a hugely ambitious and brilliantly achieved novel as brilliantly clever as Powers previous novels but also deeply political and deep

Mobile Narratives Eleftheria Arapoglou, Mónika Fodor, Jopi Nyman, 2013-08-15 Emphasizing the role of travel and migration in the performance and transformation of identity this volume addresses representations of travel mobility and migration in 19th 21st century travel writing literature and media texts In so doing the book analyses the role of the various cultural ethnic gender and national encounters pertinent to narratives of travel and migration in transforming and problematizing the identities of both the travelers and travelees enacting in the borderzones between cultures While the individual essays by scholars from a wide range of countries deal with a variety of case studies from various historical spatial and cultural locations they share a strong central interest in the ways in which the narratives of travel contribute to the imagining of ethnic encounters and how they have acted as sites of transformation and transculturation from the early nineteenth century to the present day In addition to discussing textual representations of travel and migration the volume also addresses the ways in which cultural texts themselves travel and are reconstructed in various cultural settings The analyses are particularly attentive to the issues of globalization and migration which provide a general frame for interpretation What distinguishes the volume from existing books is its concern with travel and migration as ways of forging transcultural identities that are able to subvert existing categorizations and binary models of identity formation In so doing it pays particular attention to the performance of identity in various spaces of cultural encounter ranging from North America to the East of Europe putting particular emphasis on the representation of intercultural and ethnic encounters

Narrated Communities - Narrated Realities, 2015-05-19

Culture studies try to understand how people assume identities and how they perceive reality In this perspective narration as a basic form of cognitive processing is a fundamental cultural technique Narrations provide the coherence temporal organization and semantic integration that are essential for the development and communication of identity knowledge and orientation in a socio cultural context In essence Anderson s Imagined Communities need to be thought of as Narrated Communities from the beginning Narration is made up by what people think and vice versa narration makes up people s thoughts What is considered fictitious or real no longer separates narratives from an outside they refer to but rather represents different narratives Narration not only constructs notions of what was real in retrospect but also prospectively creates possible worlds even in the supposedly hard sciences as in e g the imaginative simulation of physical processes The book s unique interdisciplinary approach shows how the implications of this fundamental insight go far beyond the sphere of literature and carry weight for both scholarly and scientific disciplines

The Proverbial "Pied Piper" Kevin J.

McKenna, 2009 With more than one hundred fifty books and three hundred published articles on proverb studies that have attracted wide attention of folklorists around the world it is little wonder that international scholars look upon Wolfgang Mieder as the modern day Pied Piper of paremiology For this festschrift some of the world s leading proverb and folklore scholars have come together to commemorate Mieder s sixty fifth birthday Authors from Russia Eastern and Western Europe

Israel and the United States have contributed essays representative of the scope and breadth of Mieder's own impressive scholarship. The Proverbial Pied Piper honors Wolfgang Mieder's legendary contributions to the study of proverbs and contains new scholarship by some of the best paremiologists in the world. Color Monitors Martin Kevorkian, 2018-07-05

Color Monitors looks at a particular subset of imagined computer use focusing on scenarios that demand from the person at the keyboard an intimate technical knowledge. My research has uncovered a peculiar pattern: race comes into sharp relief when computer use is depicted as difficult labor requiring special expertise. Time and again in such scenarios the helpful person of color is there to take the call to provide technical support to deal with the machines. In interpreting such images, Color Monitors analyzes the computer-fearing strain in American whiteness, an aspect of white identity that defines itself against information technology and the racial other imagined to love it and excel at it. Martin Kevorkian

Following up on Ralph Ellison's intimation that blacks serve as the machines inside the machine, Color Monitors examines the designation of black bodies as natural machines for the information age. Martin Kevorkian shows how African Americans are consistently depicted as highly skilled, intelligent, and technologically savvy as they work to solve complex computer problems in popular movies, corporate advertising, and contemporary fiction. But is this progress? Or do such seemingly positive depictions have more disturbing implications? Kevorkian provocatively asserts that whites' historical fear of a black planet has in the age of microprocessing converged with a new fear of computers and the possibility that digital imperatives will engulf human creativity. Analyzing escapist fantasies from Mission Impossible to Minority Report, Kevorkian argues that the placement of a black man in front of a computer screen doubly reassures audiences: he is nonthreatening, safely occupied, even imprisoned by the very machine he attempts to control, an occupation that simultaneously frees the action heroes from any electronic headaches. The study concludes with some alternatives to this scheme, looking to a network of recent authors with shared affinities for Ellison and Pynchon, willing to think inside the black box of technology. Connecting race, technology, and American empire, Color Monitors will attract attention from scholars working in emerging areas of race theory, African American studies, film studies, cultural studies, and technology and communication studies. A New Literary History of America Greil Marcus, Werner Sollors, 2012-05-07

A New Literary History of America is a nation making itself up as it goes along, a story of discovery and invention unfolding in speeches and images, letters and poetry, unprecedented feats of scholarship and imagination. In these myriad, multiform, endlessly changing expressions of the American experience, the authors and editors of this volume find a new American history. In more than two hundred original essays, A New Literary History of America brings together the nation's many voices. From the first conception of a New World in the sixteenth century to the latest re-envisioning of that world in cartoons, television, science fiction, and hip hop, the book gives us a new kaleidoscopic view of what Made in America means. Literature, music, film, art, history, science, philosophy, political rhetoric, cultural creations of every kind appear in relation to each other and to the time and place that give them shape. The meeting of minds is extraordinary, as T. J. Clark

Water and Sanitation David Satterthwaite,2003 New York ,2003 The Politics of Politeness Derek Edyvane,2025-05-26 Politeness is political It is easy to disregard our everyday street level interactions and the politeness or impoliteness by which they are marked but those interactions determine the quality of the social atmosphere we inhabit and democracies cannot flourish without an atmosphere congenial to their ends We must therefore enlarge our understanding of citizenship to encompass the democracy of everyday living and we must learn to think politically about the dilemmas of politeness it presents The Politics of Politeness develops the first sustained account of ordinary citizenship Arguing for the political significance of everyday urban interactions Edyvane proposes an interpretation of politeness as civility and as a key political practice for democracies Against recent conceptualisations of polite civility as a communicative virtue the book elaborates an innovative ceremonial account that takes seriously the ritual like character of polite interaction and its embeddedness in a larger civilisational discourse Drawing on an eclectic range of sources from empirical ethnography to novels and TV shows the book offers a new perspective on familiar dilemmas of everyday politeness What should you do when codes of manners embarrassingly clash Should you say something when a shop assistant slights another customer or should you mind your own business How should you finesse awkward encounters with beggars and vagrants And is there ever any place for rudeness in polite society By treating these dilemmas as political problems as problems of democratic citizenship we gain fresh insight into them into why they matter and how to navigate them more wisely     Art from Start to Finish Howard S. Becker, Robert R. Faulkner, Barbara Kirshenblatt-Gimblett, 2006-06-15 This text gathers together group of contributors from the worlds of sociology musicology literature and communications to discuss how artists from jazz musicians to painters work how they coordinate their efforts how they think how they start and of course how they finish their productions     The Encyclopedia of Twentieth-Century Fiction, 3 Volume Set Brian W. Shaffer, 2011-01-18 This Encyclopedia offers an indispensable reference guide to twentieth century fiction in the English language With nearly 500 contributors and over one million words it is the most comprehensive and authoritative reference guide to twentieth century fiction in the English language Contains over 500 entries of 1000 3000 words written in lucid jargon free prose by an international cast of leading scholars Arranged in three volumes covering British and Irish Fiction American Fiction and World Fiction with each volume edited by a leading scholar in the field Entries cover major writers such as Saul Bellow Raymond Chandler John Steinbeck Virginia Woolf A S Byatt Samuel Beckett D H Lawrence Zadie Smith Salman Rushdie V S Naipaul Nadine Gordimer Alice Munro Chinua Achebe J M Coetzee and Ng g Wa Thiong o and their key works Examines the genres and sub genres of fiction in English across the twentieth century including crime fiction Sci Fi chick lit the noir novel and the avant garde novel as well as the major movements debates and rubrics within the field such as censorship globalization modernist fiction fiction and the film industry and the fiction of migration diaspora and exile     Understanding Richard Powers Joseph Dewey, 2002 Dewey contends that while Powers s novels investigate the most pressing issues of the new millennium the novelist is most deeply interested in the same thematic argument that consumed Ralph Waldo Emerson and Emily Dickinson the problem of the self the deep and unshakable loneliness that has always been at the heart of the American literary imagination BOOK JACKET

Z. Angl. Am ,2006     The Spectator ,2004     Singing the Rite to Belong Helen Phelan, 2017 This book explores the way in which singing can foster experiences of belonging through ritual performance Based on more than two decades of ethnographic pedagogical and musical research it is set against the backdrop of the new Ireland of the late 20th and early 21st centuries Charting Ireland s growing multiculturalism changing patterns of migration the diminished influence of Catholicism and synergies between indigenous and global forms of cultural expression it explores rights and rites of belonging in contemporary Ireland Helen Phelan examines a range of religious educational civic and community based rituals including religious rituals of new migrant communities in borrowed rituals spaces baptismal rituals in the context of the Irish citizenship referendum rituals that mythologize the core values of an educational institution a ritual laboratory for students of singing and community based festivals and performances Her investigation peels back the physiological emotional and cultural layers of singing to illuminate how it functions as a potential agent of belonging Each chapter engages theoretically with one of five core characteristics of singing resonance somatics performance temporality and tacitness in the context of particular performed rituals Phelan offers a persuasive proposal for ritually framed singing as a valuable and potent tool in the creation of inclusive creative and integrated communities of belonging
