Walker,2017-04-21 Stuart Walker's design work has been described as life changing inspiring disturbing and ferocious Drawing on an extraordinarily diverse range of sources and informed by creative practice Design for Life penetrates to the heart of modern culture and the malaise that underlies today's moral and environmental crises The author argues that this malaise is deep seated and fundamental to the modern outlook He shows how our preoccupation with technological progress growth and the future has produced a constricted view of life one that is both destructive and self reinforcing Based on over twenty five years of scholarship and creative practice he demonstrates the vital importance of solitude contemplation inner growth and the present moment in developing a different course one that looks squarely at our current precarious situation while offering a positive hopeful way forward a way that is compassionate context based human scale ethically motivated and critically creative Design for Life is an intensely original contribution that will be essential reading for design practitioners and students Written in a clear accessible style it will also appeal to a broader readership especially anyone who is concerned with contemporary society's rising inequalities and environmental failings and is looking for a more constructive balanced and thoughtful direction Proceedings of the Future Technologies Conference (FTC) 2019 Kohei Arai,Rahul Bhatia,Supriya Kapoor,2019-10-12 This book presents state of the art intelligent methods and techniques for solving real world problems and offers a vision of future research Featuring 143 papers from the 4th Future Technologies Conference held in San Francisco USA in 2019 it covers a wide range of important topics including but not limited to computing electronics artificial intelligence robotics security and communications and their applications to the real world As such it is an interesting exciting and inspiring read Linking Habitat Quality to Population Dynamics for Conservation Decision Making David R. Breininger,Doug P. Armstrong,Robert C. Lacy,James Nichols,2025-04-09 Endangered Species Recovery planning is often based on predictions from population models Species recovery is contingent on habitat restoration including reduction of threats such as predators and parasites However population predictions are rarely linked to habitat management meaning that management cannot be easily guided by most formal decision making frameworks Predicted recovery trajectories may depend not only on the type and extent of restoration but also the timing For example populations may initially continue to decline as habitat restoration takes place and their genetic diversity might need to be maintained during that process There is also often considerable uncertainty about the effectiveness of proposed management in improving habitat quality and the effects of those improvements on population growth rates of the species targeted for recovery We seek examples of approaches integrating habitat restoration and population dynamics to guide decision making One example is where population data e.g occupancy and habitat dynamics e.g transition probabilities between states are directly integrated into a statistical likelihood Another uses a metamodel to combine different interdisciplinary models e.g population habitat disease predator prey to represent a more complex system integrating the flow of information and sequences of events among models Decision frameworks to enhance species recovery could include management of relatively natural areas but also more intensively managed areas such as zoos or fragmented landscape with minimal long term conservation potential for some species Decision frameworks will ideally include adaptive management i e re current decisions recognizing that conservation decisions often need to begin imminently and that delaying action is a decision We invite articles that include several of the following elements in the context of conservation decision making Explaining why it is important to consider animal or plant population and habitat dynamics together Case studies models or other demonstrations of how habitat and population dynamics should or can be linked Examples may include remnant populations but also recent or prospective translocations Explicit or decision making approaches including adaptive management for linking habitat and populations for conservation to guide conservation Showing how loss of genetic variation in small populations can affect decisions given the time needed to restore habitat reduced toxins introduced predators disease Showing how variation in population and habitats over time and or space are important for decisions about species recovery
