Financial Information Analysis Philip O'Regan, 2025-08-01 Accounting information is one of the most vital and important sources of information in the modern world. Those who understand this and can analyse its context and content have the power to influence key decision making processes. Philip O'Regan's authoritative and important textbook provides readers with the tools and techniques to analyse accounting information and present it in a manner that is clear, focused, and valuable. Updated to reflect changes in IFRS governance codes and regulatory frameworks as well as new sustainability reporting rules, the text sheds light on the role of accounting information in modern society and the many ways in which it can be used by a variety of stakeholders including shareholders, investors, employees, environmentalists, and others. For readers across the UK, Ireland, and continental Europe, this new edition is completely updated to incorporate relevant accounting standards, sustainability, ESG regulations, and advanced analytical techniques. Features which add unique value to this fourth edition of Financial Information Analysis include case studies in every chapter with numerous supporting articles from the major financial presses, questions for review, and comprehensive online support and materials. This essential textbook is core reading for advanced undergraduate and postgraduate students wishing to understand the role of accounting information in modern society. Confirming Dividend Changes and the Non-Monotonic Investor Revision of Earnings Persistence

Christian Müller, 2013-12-30 The stylized facts that firms pay and investors react to dividends disregard dividend neutrality. Taking on the perspective that informational asymmetries are the central determinant for dividend value relevance, Christian Müller assumes that a firm's dividend decision conveys useful information to investors. He shows that investors use dividend changes to revise their a priori expectations about the persistence of a current earnings change. While his theoretical and empirical analyses generally imply that dividend changes constitute informative but imperfect information signals, he further identifies situations in which they are substantial to investors. Christian Müller's research comprehensively examines the informational role of dividend policy and provides new insights to the corresponding Bayesian investor learning process.

Corporate Finance Financial Management in the Sport Industry Matthew T. Brown, Daniel A. Rascher, Mark S. Nagel, Chad D. McEvoy, 2016-12-15

Financial Management in the Sport Industry provides readers with an understanding of sport finance and the importance of sound financial management in the sport industry. It begins by covering finance basics and the tools and techniques of financial quantification using current industry examples to apply the principles of financial management to sport. It then goes beyond the basics to show how financial management works specifically in sport: how decisions are made to ensure wealth maximization. Discussions include debt and equity financing, capital budgeting, facility financing, economic impact, risk and return, time value of money, and more. The final section focuses on sport finance in three sectors of the industry: public sector sports, collegiate athletics, and professional sport, providing in-depth analysis of financial management in each sector. Sidebars, case studies, concept checks, and practice problems throughout provide practical applications of the material and enable thorough study and practice. The business of sport has changed dynamically since the publication of the first edition, and this second edition reflects the impact of these changes on financial management in the sport industry. New to this edition are changes to reflect the global nature of sport, with for example discussions of income tax rates in the Premier League, expanded material on the use of spreadsheets for financial calculations, a primer on accounting principles to help students interpret financial statements, a valuation case study assignment that takes students step by step through a valuation, a new stadium feasibility analysis using the efforts of the Oakland Raiders to obtain a new stadium, a new economic impact example focusing on the NBA All Star game, and much more.
