Transpersonal Research Methods for the Social Sciences

William Braud, Rosemarie Anderson, 1998-04-29 There is no shortage of research methods that are easily applied to the study of everyday human experience. How though does one attempt to study extraordinary human experiences, ultimate values and meanings, peak experiences, transcendence and heightened awareness among others? Authors William Braud and Rosemarie Anderson introduce a series of transpersonal research methods that are intended to help researchers develop new ways of knowing and methods of inquiry. While these methods will be of particular interest to researchers in transpersonal psychology, humanistic psychology or transpersonal studies applied to traditional fields, the authors argue that these approaches with their emphasis on developing intuition, empathy, self-awareness can benefit anyone involved in the research enterprise. With its solid grounding in transpersonal studies and extensive coverage of qualitative approaches without ignoring quantitative approaches, Transpersonal Research Methods for the Social Sciences will be an invaluable addition to the libraries of researchers across many disciplines as well as a supplement in research methods courses.

Economic Development and Export of Human Capital. A Contradiction? Nadim Zaqqa, 2006 Hypothesises that there is a positive result concerning an investment in higher education even when that person leaves the country and that a policy aiming at a surplus of graduates can be seen as an export strategy. Develops a cost-benefit approach to evaluate data collected among Jordanian teachers, engineers, IT specialists and physicians about their remittances from abroad and their repatriated savings when returning to their home country.

Psychological Testing of American Minorities Ronald J. Samuda, 1998-01-21 The Second Edition of this classic work has been thoroughly updated and revised with an additional chapter providing a powerful rebuttal to The Bell Curve. Ronald J. Samuda presents a comprehensive analysis of the perspectives, pitfalls, fallacies, issues, consequences and trends in the use of standardized norm-referenced tests with American minorities. He demonstrates that testing continues to be the primary method for injecting pseudoscientific arguments which bolster discrimination, prejudice and social injustice.

Challenges in Volunteer Management Matthew Liao-Troth, 2008-09-01 Volunteer management has many challenges not the least of which is how we study it and view it Academics examine it from a variety of disciplines and practitioners experience it in a variety of contexts However both approaches have limitations In academia we go to public administration schools to learn about public and nonprofit management to business schools to apply the principles of private enterprise to nonprofit management to sociology departments to study the phenomena of volunteerism to psychology departments to understand the motives of volunteers and economics departments to examine the value or economic worth of volunteerism The liability of the academic approach is the segmentation of study and research into departmental areas The study of volunteers and volunteerism needs to cross all of these organizational and discipline boundaries to be fully appreciated and understood as a field of interest In contrast practitioners view volunteer management from their own unique experiences They try to gauge success in volunteer management based on what they have encountered in particular organizations towns cultures and countries in which they work As important as these insights are they are difficult to generalize beyond local settings Just because an individual has been successful in working with volunteers it does not mean that the lessons learned in one situation can be translated to others under all conditions The target audience for this volume is anyone who manages volunteers The goal of the volume is to demonstrate the breadth of thought on volunteer management both across disciplines and a wide range of settings in which volunteers work
