Through the Arc of the Rain Forest Karen Tei Yamashita, 2011-04-07 Through the Arc of the Rain Forest is a burlesque of comic strip adventures and apocalyptic portents that stretches familiar truths to their logical extreme in a future world that is just recognizable enough to be frightening In the Author's Note Karen Tei Yamashita writes that her book is like a Brazilian soap opera called a novela the novela's story is completely changeable according to the whims of the public psyche and approval although most likely the unhappy find happiness the bad are punished true love reigns a popular actor is saved from death an idyll striking innocence boundless nostalgia and terrible ruthlessness The stage is a vast mysterious field of impenetrable plastic in the Brazilian rain forest set against a backdrop of rampant environmental destruction commercialization poverty and religious rapture Through the Arc of the Rainforest is narrated by a small satellite hovering permanently around the head of an innocent character named Kazumasa Through no fault of his own Kazumasa seems to draw strange and significant people into his orbit and to find himself at the center of cataclysmic events that involve carrier pigeons religious pilgrims industrial espionage magic feathers big money miracles epidemics true love and the virtual end of the world This book is simultaneously entertaining and depressing with all the rollicking pessimism you'd expect of a good soap opera or a good political satire Kirsten Backstrom 500 Great Books by Women Karen Tei Yamashita A. American Literature King-Kok Cheung, 1997 A survey of Asian American literature      The Children of 1965 Min Hyoung Song, 2013-04-15 Since the 1990s a new cohort of Asian American writers has garnered critical and popular attention Many of its members are the children of Asians who came to the United States after the Immigration and Nationality Act of 1965 lifted long standing restrictions on immigration This new generation encompasses writers as diverse as the graphic novelists Adrian Tomine and Gene Luen Yang the short story writer Nam Le and the poet Cathy Park Hong Having scrutinized more than one hundred works by emerging Asian American authors and having interviewed several of these writers Min Hyoung Song argues that collectively these works push against existing ways of thinking about race even as they demonstrate how race can facilitate creativity Some of the writers eschew their identification as ethnic writers while others embrace it as a means of tackling the uncertainty that many people feel about the near future In the literature that they create a number of the writers that Song discusses take on pressing contemporary matters such as demographic change environmental catastrophe and the widespread sense that the United States is in national decline      Techno-Orientalism 2.0 David S.

Lee, 1999-10-04 Drawing on a wide array of literary historical and theoretical sources Rachel Lee addresses current debates on the relationship among Asian American ethnic identity national belonging globalization and gender Lee argues that scholars have traditionally placed undue emphasis on ethnic based political commitments whether these are construed as national or global in their readings of Asian American texts This has constrained the intelligibility of stories that are focused less on ethnicity than on kinship family dynamics eroticism and gender roles In response Lee makes a case for a reconceptualized Asian American criticism that centrally features gender and sexuality Through a critical analysis of select literary texts novels by Carlos Bulosan Gish Jen Jessica Hagedorn and Karen Yamashita Lee probes the specific ways in which some Asian American authors have steered around ethnic themes with alternative tales circulating around gender and sexual identity Lee makes it clear that what has been missing from current debates has been an analysis of the complex ways in which gender mediates questions of both national belonging and international migration From anti miscegenation legislation in the early twentieth century to poststructuralist theories of language to Third World feminist theory to critical studies of global cultural and economic flows The Americas of Asian American Literature takes up pressing cultural and literary questions and points to a new direction in literary criticism
