JOURNEY TO THE END OF THE NIGHT

By
LOUIS-FERDINAND CÉLINE

This is not so much a book as an explosion. It has been more praised and more damned than anything since "Ulysses." It was not given the Prix Goncourt—and L'Académie Goncourt was nearly disrupted as a result. It was given the Prix Renaudot, and the sober-minded critics writhed in agony. The author has been compared to Rabelais, Montaigne, Flaubert, Zola, Anatole France, Steinberg, Huxley, Joyce, Hemingway, Dos Passos. The novel has been labelled "an insult to the reader" and called "the great literary discovery of the year." This literary furore took place in France, but the echoes reached all over Europe, and even made a noise in literary circles in America. Few foreign novels have been so well heralded before their publication in English.

It is the story of an underdog, of all underdogs, of the millions who go through "life" without hope, without raising their eyes. In here, Bachelard, hurled into the War and escaped from it to a hospital for the mentally deranged, suffering from fear and revulsion. He is cured, sent to Africa to a four-year prison camp, ends up in a hospital for the insane where he meets a girl, and returns to France to continue his medical studies and open a practice among the poor of a Paris suburb. The story is the last part of this book. In spirit, it is French. It is French with beauty, beauty, beauty, beauty.

Postmodernity, Ethics and the Novel Andrew Gibson, 2002-01-04 In Postmodernity Ethics and the Novel Andrew Gibson sets out to demonstrate that postmodern theory has actually made possible an ethical discourse around fiction Each chapter elaborates and discusses a particular aspect of Levinas thought and raises questions for that thought and its bearing on the novel It also contains detailed analyses of particular texts Part of the book's originality is its concentration on a range of modernist and postmodern novels which have seldom if ever served as the basis for a larger ethical theory of fiction Postmodernity Ethics and the Novel discusses among others the writings of Joseph Conrad Henry James Jane Austen Samuel Beckett Marcel Proust and Salman Rushdie

The Illusion of History Illusion of History Andrew R. Russ, 2013 European radical political thought represented by Jean Jacques Rousseau Karl Marx and Michel Foucault has deeply impacted the Western intellectual tradition and political life These thinkers sought to transform Western societies by critiquing institutions that they felt led to oppression of groups They saw societies and institutions as part of a history that constantly develops and has no objective timeless purpose or principles They understood the history of things people do and of events that happen in a primarily evolutionary way As a result these radical political thinkers have often been thought to have a strong historical consciousness Andrew Russ argues in this book that a closer look at their philosophical underpinnings finds that Rousseau Marx and Foucault are much less historical in their methodology than is widely believed Instead they share a more timeless view one indebted to principles ordinarily seen as timeless or transcendent Russ finds that these thinkers are actually quite dependent on the philosopher who concluded the Enlightenment Immanuel Kant Russ's study shows how Kant's view of human freedom and subjectivity as timeless actually informs the work of the radical political position

ABOUT THE AUTHOR Andrew R Russ is lecturer in European studies at the University of Adelaide
