Mating By Norman Rush:

Mating Norman Rush, 2013-10-03 An American anthropologist is at a loose end in Botswana. She is ferociously intelligent and wonderfully inquisitive. She is also in love with Nelson Denoon, a charismatic intellectual who runs an experimental women-only utopian village in the Kalahari. At times wildly comic but also magnificently cerebral, Mating is a profound exploration of the human condition and a moving love story circling the question: what do men and women really want?

How/Why/What to Read Finnegans Wake? Tatsuo Hamada, 2013-09-10 This book contains the interviews by the author with famous Joyceans about how, why, and what to read Finnegans Wake. Basic questions are: 1. Can you read through from beginning to end? 2. Is there a plot in it? 3. Are there too many sexual matters? 4. Is the book worth to read for the 21st century? This book also shows the author's studies on the above questions of 1 and 2, and on the final monologue of ALP, the most beautiful poetic part in Finnegans Wake. Library, 2008 A collection of black and white photographs of libraries and the people who use them, taken in locations around the world, with an essay in praise of libraries by Daniel Boorstin, former Librarian of Congress. What do Economists Know? Robert F. Garnett Jr., 2002-01-04 A provocatively rethought of the questions of what, how, and for whom economics is produced. Academic economists in the twentieth century have presumed to monopolize economic knowledge, seeing themselves as the only legitimate producers and consumers of this highly specialized commodity. This has encouraged a narrow view of economics as little more than a private dialogue among professionally licensed knowers. This book recasts this narrow view. The ^A Pleasures of Babel Jay Clayton, 1993-12-02 The Pleasures of Babel acquaints the layperson and the expert alike with the creative and intellectual achievements of America's multicultural society. Arguing that the present is a great period of writing, Jay Clayton relates novels from the seventies, eighties, and nineties to the latest developments in literary theory. He offers a lucid, cutting-edge look at the often stormy relationship between contemporary literature and criticism. Avoiding theoretical jargon, Clayton systematically sets out to make sense of the critical movements of the last two decades: deconstruction, psychoanalysis, minority writing, multiculturalism, and feminism. In the course of clarifying the accomplishments of Barthes, Kristeva, Lyotard, Said, and others, the author discusses some of America's most prominent writers of fiction: Saul Bellow, Sandra Cisneros, E. L. Doctorow, Toni Morrison, and many others. The result successfully weds a layperson's guide to recent criticism with a scholarly application of that criticism to the very works it concerns. In light of the current debates being waged over the canon and multiculturalism, The Pleasures of Babel should prove an indispensable tool for those engaged in the practice of literary criticism, as well as anyone concerned with the way in which narrative interacts with society. Long Walk Home Jonathan D. Cohen, June Skinner Sawyers, 2019-09-23 In this unique collection, critics, musicians, scholars, and fans describe how they have been moved, shaped, and challenged by Bruce Springsteen's music. These essays examine the big questions at the heart of Springsteen's music, demonstrating the ways his songs have resonated for millions of listeners for nearly five decades. including novels and philosophical writings from Europe and the United States It considers utopia in relation to the goal of justice examining at length the question of utopian indignation and situates utopian imagining in relation to human migration across national boundaries In the author s view a rethinking of key assumptions about utopian ideas is important at a time when public interest in utopia is high and when questions about what an ideal society could mean have never been more searching
