The Translator A Tribesman's Memoir Of Darfur By Daoud Hari:

The Translator Daoud Hari, 2008-06-05 Daoud Hari lost a way of life in Darfur. But amidst the carnage and turmoil he found a new calling. As a Zaghawa tribesman in the Darfur region of Sudan, Daoud Hari grew up racing camels across the desert, attending gloriously colourful weddings, and when his work was done playing games under the moonlight. But in 2003, helicopter gunships swooped down on Darfur's villages and shattered that way of life for ever. Soon, Sudanese government-backed militias attacking on horseback came to murder, rape, and burn to drive the tribesmen from their lands. When Hari's village was attacked and destroyed, his family was decimated and dispersed. He escaped and, together with a group of friends, roamed the battlefield deserts, helping the weak and vulnerable find food, water, and a path to safety. And when international aid groups and reporters arrived, Hari gave his services as a translator and guide. To do so was to risk his life, for the Sudanese government had outlawed journalists, punishing aid to foreign spies with death. Yet Hari did so, time and again. Until eventually his luck ran out and he was captured. The Translator is a harrowing tale of selfless courage in terrifying conditions.

Book Club Kit Daoud Hari, Dennis Michael Burke, Megan M. McKenna, 2008 This is a harrowing memoir of how one person has made a difference. Daoud Hari helped inform the world about the genocide in Darfur. Hari, a Zaghawa tribesman, grew up in a village in the Darfur region of Sudan. In 2003, traditional life was shattered when government-backed militias attacked Darfur's villages with helicopters and on horseback, raping and murdering citizens and burning villages. His family dispersed, Hari escaped. He and friends helped survivors find food, water, and safety. When international aid groups and reporters arrived, Hari offered his services as a translator and guide, using his high school knowledge of languages. In doing so, time and again, he risked his life, for the government of Sudan had outlawed journalists in the region. Then, inevitably, his luck ran out and he was captured. Now freed, he is a living witness to genocide. From publisher description. The Translator Daoud Hari, 2009-01-13 NATIONAL BESTSELLER A suspenseful and deeply moving memoir that lays open the Darfur genocide intimately and powerfully. The Washington Post Book World and shows how one person can make a difference in the world. A book of unusually humane power and astounding moral clarity. Kirkus Reviews starred review. I am the translator who has taken journalists into dangerous Darfur. It is my intention now to take you there in this book if you have the courage to come with me. Daoud Hari, his friends call him David, is a Zaghawa tribesman and grew up in a village in the Darfur region of Sudan. As a child, he saw colorful weddings, raced his camels across the desert, and played games in the moonlight after his work was done. This traditional life shattered in 2003 when helicopter gunships appeared over Darfur's villages. Hari was among the hundreds of thousands of villagers attacked and driven from their homes by Sudanese government-backed militia groups. Though Hari's village was burned to the ground, his family decimated and dispersed, he himself escaped, eventually finding safety across the border. Roaming the battlefield deserts on camels, he and a group of his friends helped survivors find food, water, and the way to safety. With his high school knowledge of languages, Hari offered his services as a translator and
