Assessment Learning And Judgement In Higher Education:

Assessment, Learning and Judgement in Higher Education Gordon Joughin, 2008-12-11 There has been a remarkable growth of interest in the assessment of student learning and its relation to the process of learning in higher education over the past ten years This interest has been expressed in various ways through large scale research projects international conferences the development of principles of assessment that supports learning a growing awareness of the role of feedback as an integral part of the learning process and the publication of exemplary assessment practices At the same time more limited attention has been given to the underlying nature of assessment to the concerns that arise when assessment is construed as a measurement process and to the role of judgement in evaluating the quality of students work It is now timely to take stock of some of the critical concepts that underpin our understanding of the multifarious relationships between assessment and learning and to explicate the nature of assessment as judgement Despite the recent growth in interest noted above assessment in higher education remains under conceptualized This book seeks to make a significant contribution to conceptualizing key aspects of assessment learning and judgement

Assessment, Learning And Employability Knight, Peter, Yorke, Mantz, 2003-10-01 Clearly set out in three specific sections this book argues that that existing grading practices cannot cope with the expectations laid upon them while the potential of formative assessment for the support of learning is not fully realised discusses how institutions need to respond in policy terms to the challenges that have been posed

Developing Evaluative Judgement in Higher Education David Boud, Rola Ajjawi, Phillip Dawson, Joanna Tai, 2018-04-19 A key skill to be mastered by graduates today is the ability to assess the quality of their own work and the work of others This book demonstrates how the higher education system might move away from a culture of unhelpful grades and rigid marking schemes to focus instead on forms of feedback and assessment that develop the critical skills of its students Tracing the historical and sociocultural development of evaluative judgement and bringing together evidence and practice design from a range of disciplines this book demystifies the concept of evaluative judgement and shows how it might be integrated and encouraged in a range of pedagogical contexts Contributors develop various understandings of this often poorly understood concept and draw on their experience to showcase a toolbox of strategies including peer learning self regulated learning self assessment and the use of technologies A key text for those working with students in the higher education system Developing Evaluative Judgement in Higher Education will give readers the knowledge and confidence required to promote these much needed skills when working with individual students and groups

Teacher Development in Higher Education Eszter Simon, Gabriela

Pleschová,2012 Concerns about the quality of teaching and learning in higher education have given rise to teacher development programs and centers around the world This book investigates the challenges and complexities of creating instructional development programs for present and future academics Using case studies from a variety of countries including Estonia Singapore the United States and the United Kingdom it examines issues that are important for higher education researchers as well as for higher education managers The book introduces different responses from around the world to the need to improve teaching in higher education demonstrates many different ways success may be understood and investigates what factors may influence the results of instructional development Contributors use these factors as well as those found in the related literature to explain program success through theoretical frameworks This book also provides input for higher education managers by pointing out how the local context and both institutional and national policy making may help or hinder the effective preparation of professors for their teaching responsibilities Transparency in Assessment - Exploring the Influence of Explicit Assessment Criteria Anders Jönsson,Frans Prins,2019-04-03 In many schools and higher education institutions it has become common practice to share assessment criteria with students Sometimes it is required for accountability purposes at other times criteria are used as a means to communicate expectations to students However the idea that explicit assessment criteria should be shared with students has been contested On the one hand research has shown that explicit criteria may positively affect student performance reduce their anxiety as well as support students use of self regulated learning strategies On the other hand there are fears that explicit criteria may have a restraining influence on students learning as well as limiting their autonomy and creativity There are also indications of students becoming more performance oriented as opposed to learning oriented when being provided with explicit assessment criteria Taken together it is not fully understood under which circumstances it is productive for student learning to share explicit assessment criteria and under which circumstances it is not In particular empirical research on the proposed negative effects of sharing criteria with learners is limited and most fears voiced in the literature are based on individual experiences and anecdotal evidence In this book we therefore bring different perspectives on transparency in assessment together in order to further our understanding of how students are influenced by the use of explicit assessment criteria A deeper understanding of the influence of explicit assessment criteria on students understanding of criteria motivation and learning is equally imperative for future research and educational practice both of which need to go beyond individual opinions and convictions
