Strange as it sounds during the 1870s and 1880s America's most popular spectator sport wasn't baseball football or horseracing it was competitive walking Inside sold out arenas competitors walked around dirt tracks almost nonstop for six straight days never on Sunday risking their health and sanity to see who could walk the farthest 500 miles then 520 miles and 565 miles These walking matches were as talked about as the weather the details reported in newspapers and telegraphed to fans from coast to coast This long forgotten sport known as pedestrianism spawned America's first celebrity athletes The top pedestrians earned a fortune in prize money and endorsement deals The sport also opened doors for immigrants African Americans and women But along with the excitement came the inevitable scandals charges of doping coca leaves and insider gambling It even spawned a riot in 1879 when too many fans showed up at New York's Gilmore's Gardens later renamed Madison Square Gardens and were denied entry to a widely publicized showdown Pedestrianism When Watching People Walk Was America's Favorite Spectator Sport chronicles competitive walking's peculiar appeal and popularity its rapid demise and its enduring influence In many ways pedestrianism marked the beginning of modern spectator sports in the United States Matthew Algeo is the author of Harry Truman's Excellent Adventure The President Is a Sick Man and Last Team Standing An award winning journalist Algeo has reported from three continents for public radio's All Things Considered Marketplace and Morning Edition India Rubber World and Electrical Trades Review, 1942
