The Cognitive Life of Maps Roberto Casati, 2024-05-14 The mapness of maps how maps live in interaction with their users and what this tells us about what they are and how they work In a sense maps are temporarily alive for those who design draw and use them They have for the moment a cognitive life To grapple with what this means to ask how maps can be alive and what kind of life they have is to explore the core question of what maps are And this is what Roberto Casati does in The Cognitive Life of Maps in the process assembling the conceptual tools for understanding why maps have the power they have why they are so widely used and how we use and misuse them Drawing on insights from cognitive science and philosophy of mind Casati considers the main claims around what maps are and how they work their specific syntax peculiar semantics and pragmatics He proposes a series of steps that can lead to a precise theory of maps one that reveals what maps have in common with diagrams pictures and texts and what makes them different This minimal theory of maps helps us to see maps nested in many cognitive artifacts clock faces musical notation writing calendars and numerical series for instance It also allows us to tackle the issue of the territorialization of maps to show how maps can be used to draw specific spatial inferences about territories From the mechanics of maps used for navigation to the differences and similarities between maps and pictures and models Casati's ambitious work is a cognitive map in its own right charting the way to a new understanding of what maps mean

Simon Mittman, 2013-09-13 This study centers on issues of marginality and monstrosity in medieval England In the middle ages geography was viewed as divinely ordered so Britain's location at the periphery of the inhabitable world caused anxiety among its inhabitants Far from the world's holy center the geographic margins were considered monstrous Medieval geography for centuries scorned as crude is now the subject of several careful studies Monsters have likewise been the subject of recent attention in the growing field of monster studies though few works situate these creatures firmly in their specific historical contexts This book sits at the crossroads of these two discourses geography and monstrosity treated separately in the established scholarship but inseparable in the minds of medieval authors and artists Rethinking Map

Literacy Ming Xie, Steven Reader, H. L. Vacher, 2021-03-29 This book provides two conceptual frameworks for further investigation of map literacy and fills in a gap in map literacy studies addressing the distinction between reference maps and thematic maps and the varying uses of quantitative map literacy QML within and between the two The text offers two conceptual frameworks and uses specific map examples to explore this variability in map reading skills and knowledge with the goal of informing educational pedagogy and practices within geography and related disciplines The book will appeal to cartographers and geographers as a new perspective on a tool of communication they have long employed in their disciplines and will also appeal to those involved in the educational pedagogy of information and data literacy as a way to conceptualize the development of curricula and teaching materials in the increasingly important arena of the interplay between quantitative data and map based graphics The first framework discussed is based on a three set Venn model and addresses the content and relationships of three literacies map literacy quantitative literacy and background information As part of this framework the field of QML is introduced conceptualized and defined as the knowledge concepts skills and facts required to accurately read use interpret and understand the quantitative information embedded in geographic backgrounds The second framework is of a compositional triangle based on 1 the ratio of reference to thematic map purpose and 2 the level of generalization and or distortion within maps In combination these two parameters allow for any type of map to be located within the triangle as a prelude to considering the type and level of quantitative literacy that comes into play during map reading Based on the two frameworks mentioned above the pedagogical tool of word problems is applied to map literacy in an innovative way to explore the variability of map reading skills and knowledge based on specific map examples The New Nature of Maps J. B. Harley, 2002-10-03 In these essays the author draws on ideas in art history literature philosophy and the study of visual culture to subvert the traditional positivist model of cartography and replace it with one grounded in an iconological and semiotic theory of the nature of maps
