New Challenges, New Tools for Defense Decisionmaking Stuart E. Johnson, Martin C. Libicki, Gregory F. Treverton, 2003-03-31 It is still easy to underestimate how much the collapse of the Soviet Union and the end of the Cold War and then the terrorist attacks of September 11 2001 transformed the task of American foreign and defense policymaking In place of predictability if a sometimes terrifying predictability the world is now very unpredictable In place of a single overriding threat and benchmark by which all else could be measured a number of possible threats have arisen not all of them states In place of force on force engagements U S defense planners have to assume asymmetric threats ways not to defeat U S power but to render it irrelevant This book frames the challenges for defense policy that the transformed world engenders and it sketches new tools for dealing with those challenges from new techniques in modeling and gaming to planning based on capabilities rather than threats to personnel planning and making use of best practices from the private sector
