Jeanne Cortiel, With a Barbarous Din: Race and Ethnic Encounter in Mid-Nineteenth-Century American Literature. Heidelberg: Universitätsverlag Winter, 2016. 281 pages. ISBN: 978-3-8253-6557-8.

‘Triangulation,’ the American Heritage Dictionary informs us, is “the establishment of a political position that differs from two existing or opposing positions, especially in being moderate.” In politics, in other words, it names a practice that seeks to persuade by minimizing the differences between two choices. In the academy, in contrast, it has increasingly come to be seen as a term promising an escape from the suffocating tyranny of all kinds of binaries. As such a positively loaded term, “triangulation” figures prominently in Jeanne Cortiel’s With a Barbarous Din: Race and Ethnic Encounter in Mid-Nineteenth-Century American Literature. By introducing “ethnicity” into the study of representations of racial relations in mid-nineteenth-century American literature, Cortiel wants to enable “a reading of nineteenth-century American literature that looks beyond Anglo-Saxon monoculturalism and the bipolarity of a slavery-based race system” (15).

To that end, she offers readings of five different texts published around 1855: Herman Melville’s “Benito Cereno,” Frederick Douglass’s My Bondage and My Freedom, Harriet Beecher Stowe’s second anti-slavery novel Dred: A Tale of the Great Dismal Swamp, the first edition of Walt Whitman’s Leaves of Grass, and finally John Rollin Ridge’s The Life and Adventures of Joaquín Murieta, the Celebrated California Bandit. These are very different texts, but Cortiel highlights their similarity rather than their singularity: all “engage with contemporary delimitations of ‘race’ but also find ways to transcend their terms” (32). More specifically, her method, Cortiel declares, is that “of reading ahistorically through the structural opposition between race and ethnicity” (34).

In practice, this means that Cortiel ignores not history so much as definitional clarity. Throughout, race is “conceptualized [...] as a scientific concept grounded in a basic dualistic opposition or binary” (242), even

Vahdat,2002-05-01 Farzin Vahdat has written a trenchant analysis of the intellectual discourse of modernity in Iran Although there have been several recent studies about Iranian intellectuals this volume is unique in that it focuses almost entirely on intellectual discourse among the clergy Vahdat first provides us with a solid foundation for understanding the key Critical Theory concept of subjectivity especially as expounded in the writings of Jurgen Habermas Then he successfully shows how one Western philosophical approach does have universal applicability by demonstrating the concern of Iranian theorists such as Shariati Motahhari Khomeini and Soroush with human subjectivity By engaging the major theoretical discourses of modernity the author attempts for the first time in a non Western context to address some of the central theoretical issues involved in modernity and Iran s experience of these issues As such this study can contribute to a profound understanding of modernity and its development in a Middle Eastern context This book is an important addition to the growing body of work in Global Studies and Critical Theory as well as on contemporary Iran With a Barbarous Din Jeanne Cortiel,2016 This study re examines the mid 1850s a time that remains central to American literary studies exploring new ways of looking at this cultural moment through the twentieth century concept of ethnicity This approach uncovers the hidden subversiveness of American literature as it responded to scientific race theory in the debate over slavery and also highlights the ways in which the texts examined in this study Herman Melville s Benito Cereno 1855 Frederick Douglass My Bondage and My Freedom 1855 Harriet Beecher Stowe s Dred 1856 Walt Whitman s Leaves of Grass 1855 and John Rollin Ridge s The Life and Adventures of Joaquin Murieta 1854 powerfully resonate with ideas of affiliation and difference today Focusing on a brief historical moment in the past from a decidedly twenty first century perspective the study reflects upon the texts movement through time and demonstrates how race and ethnicity in these texts have been transformed under the pressures of history

Experiencing the Frontier and the Frontier of Experience: Barbarian perspectives and Roman strategies to deal with new threats Alexander Rubel,Hans-Ulrich Voß,2020-12-17 This book considers the Roman Empire s responses to the threats which were caused by the new geostrategic situation brought on by the crisis of the 3rd century AD induced by the barbarians who often already part of Roman military structures as mercenaries and auxiliaries became a veritable menace for the Empire Athenaeum and Literary Chronicle James Silk Buckingham,John Sterling,Frederick Denison Maurice,Henry Stebbing,Charles Wentworth Dilke,Thomas Kibble Hervey,William Hepworth Dixon,Norman Maccoll,Vernon

Horace Rendall, John Middleton Murry, 1870      The Gothic Other Ruth Bienstock Anolik, Douglas L. Howard, 2014-09-26

Literary use of the Gothic is marked by an anxious encounter with otherness with the dark and mysterious unknown From its earliest manifestations in the turbulent eighteenth century this seemingly escapist mode has provided for authors a useful ground upon which to safely confront very real fears and horrors The essays here examine texts in which Gothic fear is relocated onto the figure of the racial and social Other the Other who replaces the supernatural ghost or grotesque monster as the code for mystery and danger ultimately becoming as horrifying threatening and unknowable as the typical Gothic manifestation The range of essays reveals that writers from many canons and cultures are attracted to the Gothic as a ready medium for expression of racial and social anxieties The essays are grouped into sections that focus on such topics as race religion class and centers of power

The Arab Imago Stephen Sheehi, 2016-04-12 The birth of photography coincided with the expansion of European imperialism in the Middle East and some of the medium's earliest images are Orientalist pictures taken by Europeans in such places as Cairo and Jerusalem photographs that have long shaped and distorted the Western visual imagination of the region But the Middle East had many of its own photographers collectors and patrons In this book Stephen Sheehi presents a groundbreaking new account of early photography in the Arab world The Arab Imago concentrates primarily on studio portraits by Arab and Armenian photographers in the late Ottoman Empire Examining previously known studios such as Abdullah Fr res Pascal S bah Garabed Krikorian and Khalil Raad the book also provides the first account of other pioneers such as Georges and Louis Saboungi the Kova Brothers Muhammad Sadiq Bey and Ibrahim Rif at Pasha as well as the first detailed look at early photographs of the annual pilgrimage to Mecca In addition the book explores indigenous photography manuals and albums newspapers scientific journals and fiction Featuring extensive previously unpublished images The Arab Imago shows how native photography played an essential role in the creation of modern Arab societies in Egypt Palestine Syria and Lebanon before the First World War At the same time the book overturns Eurocentric and Orientalist understandings of indigenous photography and challenges previous histories of the medium

The Church of England magazine [afterw.] The Church of England and Lambeth magazine , 1857      Islamic Liberation Theology Hamid Dabashi, 2008-05-14 This book is a radical piece of counter intuitive rethinking of the clash of civilizations theory and global politics In this richly detailed criticism of contemporary politics Hamid Dabashi argues that after 9 11 we have not seen a new phase in a long running confrontation between Islam and the West but that such categories have in fact collapsed and exhausted themselves The West is no longer a unified actor and Islam is ideologically depleted in its confrontation with colonialism Rather we are seeing the emergence of the US as a lone superpower and a confrontation between a form of imperial globalized capital and the rising need for a new Islamic theodicy The combination of political salience and theoretical force makes Islamic Liberation Theology a cornerstone of a whole new generation of thinking about political Islamism and a compelling read for anyone interested in contemporary Islam current affairs and US foreign policy Dabashi drives his well supported and thoroughly documented points steadily forward in an earnest and highly readable style     The 'Book' of Travels: Genre, Ethnology, and Pilgrimage, 1250-1700 Palmira Brummett, 2009-04-24 The early modern era is often envisioned as one in which European genres both narrative and visual diverged indelibly from those of medieval times This collection examines a disparate set of travel texts dating from the thirteenth to the seventeenth centuries to question that divergence and to assess the modes themes and ethnologies of travel writing It demonstrates the enduring nature of the itinerary the variant forms of witnessing including imaginary maps the crafting of sacred space as a cautionary tale and the use of the travel narrative to represent the transformation of the authorial self Focusing on European travelers to the expansive East from the soft architecture of Timur's tent palaces in Samarkand to the ambiguities of sexual identity at the Mughul court these essays reveal the possibilities for cultural translation as travelers of varying experience and attitude confront remote and foreign or not so foreign space
