Lindsey "Luka" Carfagna, 2014-09-19 Open learning has emerged within the public imagination as a potentially disruptive force in higher education It has attracted the attention of policy makers venture capitalists and the technology sector key functionaries in higher education teachers students activists progressives futurists and researchers Despite the amount of attention it has received in popular media there has been very little research on open learning from the perspective of learners This case study was designed to provide that vantage point Open learning pairs well with the core contexts and properties of connected learning It is an analysis of connected learning within open learning providing insight on how educators designers and technologists can continue to assess and design learning ecologies that promote the framework designed with access and equity as foundational of connected learning

Stem Cell Battles: Proposition 71 And Beyond - How Ordinary People Can Fight Back Against The Crushing Burden Of Chronic Disease - With A Posthumous Foreword By Christopher Reeve Don C Reed, 2015-10-06 This is a one of a kind book combining easy to understand science in the trenches political warfare and inspirational stories It aims to give hope to individuals and families who suffer from chronic disease or disability to point out how ordinary people can make an extraordinary difference in the battle to ease suffering and save lives through supporting medical research to share in people talk some of the amazing progress already achieved in the new field of stem cell research to show how even such a magnificent success as the California stem cell program is under constant attack from ideological groups to offer medical research as a force for international cooperation to suggest how cure research lessens the need for the mountainous costs of endless care Unparalleled background the author has been involved in virtually every important stem cell battle state national and international since embryonic stem cell research began The author works closely with Robert N Klein sponsor of the California stem cell program the largest source of such stem cell research funding in the world In addition the author is an award winning teacher as well as writer and seeks to entertain as well as educate His book is not only substantive but also fun The book would be a treasured gift for anyone suffering an incurable illness or who is a caregiver for a loved one for a college student considering a rewarding career in biomedicine for

scientists who want to protect and enhance their research funding and for anyone who wants to see government respond to the needs of its citizenry Chronic disease and disability are a prison cure is the triumphant escape wheelchairs should be for temporary occupancy only

Beyond the Gap Julie Rozenberg, Marianne Fay, 2019-01-30 Beyond the Gap How Countries Can Afford the Infrastructure They Need while Protecting the Planet aims to shift the debate regarding investment needs away from a simple focus on spending more and toward a focus on spending better on the right objectives using relevant metrics It does so by offering a careful and systematic approach to estimating the funding needs to close the service gaps in water and sanitation transportation electricity irrigation and flood protection Exploring thousands of scenarios this report finds that funding needs depend on the service goals and policy choices of low and middle income countries and could range anywhere from 2 percent to 8 percent of GDP per year by 2030 Beyond the Gap also identifies a policy mix that will enable countries to achieve key international goals universal access to water sanitation and electricity greater mobility improved food security better protection from floods and eventual full decarbonization while limiting spending on new infrastructure to 4 5 percent of GDP per year Importantly the exploration of thousands of scenarios shows that infrastructure investment paths compatible with full decarbonization in the second half of the century need not cost more than more polluting alternatives Investment needs remain at 2 percent to 8 percent of GDP even when only the decarbonized scenarios are examined The actual amount depends on the quality and quantity of services targeted the timing of investments construction costs and complementary policies Finally investing in infrastructure is not enough maintaining it also matters Improving services requires much more than capital expenditure Ensuring a steady flow of resources for operations and maintenance is a necessary condition for success Good maintenance also generates substantial savings by reducing the total life cycle cost of transport and water and sanitation infrastructure by more than 50 percent

Environment and Planning, 2007

Innovations in Sustainable Consumption Maurie J. Cohen, Halina Szejnwald Brown, Philip Vergragt, 2013-01-01 Few people who think about the state of the world are content with the status quo The increasingly complex mix of economic social environmental and political problems at all scales requires new ways of thinking It also requires new ways of integrating mutually supportive ideas and approaches which is what this useful new book offers around the theme of sustainable consumption The editors and contributors offer a breadth and depth of research from three domains the new economics socio technical transitions and social practice with a focus on consumption that meets the needs of people within the limits of the biosphere Peter A Victor York University Canada In recent years much hard thinking has been devoted to exploring the transition to true sustainability and consumption's role in it Innovations in Sustainable Consumption offers an impressive and enormously useful synthesis of this new work Highly recommended James Gustave Speth Vermont University Law School US and author of America the Possible Manifesto for a New Economy This is a very timely and inspiring book The editors have carefully compiled original contributions from leading researchers in sustainable consumption reflecting the important work of the SCORAI network and beyond This is a must read for those who want to know where research in sustainable consumption is really heading Lucia A Reisch Copenhagen Business School Denmark This timely volume recognizes that traditional policy approaches to reduce human impacts on the environment through technological change for example emphasizing resource efficiency and the development of renewable energy sources are insufficient to meet the most pressing sustainability challenges of the twenty first century Instead the editors and contributors argue that we must fundamentally reconfigure our lifestyles and social institutions if we are to make the transition toward a truly sustainable future These expert contributions pinpoint specific areas in which innovation will be required These include economic policies socio technical systems of production and consumption and dominant social practices Drawing on these and other diverse areas of scholarship this fascinating book highlights new conceptual frameworks for achieving the twin sustainability goals of decreased resource use and enhanced individual and societal well being Students professors and policymakers in ecological economics innovation studies environmental policy and many other related fields will find much of interest in this pathbreaking volume
