Black Masculinity and the Cinema of Policing Jared Sexton, 2017-11-07 This book offers a critical survey of film and media representations of black masculinity in the early twenty first century United States between President George W Bush s 2001 announcement of the War on Terror and President Barack Obama s 2009 acceptance of the Nobel Peace Prize It argues that images of black masculine authority have become increasingly important to the legitimization of contemporary policing and its leading role in the maintenance of an antiblack social order forged by racial slavery and segregation It examines a constellation of film and television productions from Antoine Fuqua s Training Day to John Lee Hancock s The Blind Side to Barry Jenkin s Moonlight to illuminate the contradictory dynamics at work in attempts to reconcile the promotion of black male patriarchal empowerment and the preservation of gendered antiblackness within political and popular culture

The Colorblind Screen Sarah E. Turner, Sarah Nilsen, 2014 The election of President Barack Obama signaled for many the realization of a post racial America a nation in which racism was no longer a defining social cultural and political issue While many Americans espouse a colorblind racial ideology and publicly endorse the broad goals of integration and equal treatment without regard to race in actuality this attitude serves to reify and legitimize racism and protects racial privileges by denying and minimizing the effects of systematic and institutionalized racism In The Colorblind Screen the contributors examine television s role as the major discursive medium in the articulation and contestation of racialized identities in the United States While the dominant mode of televisual racialization has shifted to a colorblind ideology that foregrounds racial differences in order to celebrate multicultural assimilation the volume investigates how this practice denies the significant social economic and political realities and inequalities that continue to define race relations today Focusing on such iconic figures as President Obama LeBron James and Oprah Winfrey many chapters examine the ways in which race is read by television audiences and fans Other essays focus on how visual constructions of race in dramas like 24 Sleeper Cell and The Wanted continue to conflate Arab and Muslim identities in post 9 11 television The volume offers an important intervention in the study of the televisual representation of race engaging with multiple aspects of the mythologies developing around notions of a post racial America and the duplicitous discursive rationale offered by the ideology of colorblindness
