Rock Cycle

1. Parts of the rock cycle are shown in the diagram below. Ice forms within the crevices of basalt rock formations, and it melts to turn rock into smaller pieces. At which point in the rock cycle diagram below would the process of breaking down rock take place?

- A. 1
B. 2
C. 3
D. 4
2. Many places including the Grand Canyons, were created by natural physical and chemical processes that continue to shape Earth, such as the water and rock cycles. How does the water cycle influence the rock cycle within a region like the Grand Canyons?
- A. Decreased rainfall makes the rocks hard and brittle, so that they crumble into pebbles.
B. The sand grains washing into the gorges slows the rate of new rock formation.
C. Large amounts of flowing water increase the rate of weathering and erosion.
D. Dudden evaporation of water causes moisture from rock layers in the walls of the Grand Canyons.
3. Earth's oldest rock formation was found on the shoreline of the Huronian Supergroup, and was found to have formed 4.28 billion years ago. In order for the scientist to determine the rock's age to a more accurate extent, what information would he or she need?
- A. The thickness of younger rock layers that cover the rock.
B. The amount of weathering present on the rock's surface.
C. The amount of radioactive element present in the rock.
D. The percentage of each mineral that makes up the rock.
4. Interactions between Earth's layers lead to some volcanic eruptions that create coastal plains. The diagram below shows the layers of Earth. Within what layer of Earth would you expect oceanic crusts to directly result in creation of volcanic plains?
