other people And then we came home and had dinner tete a tete in myuncle s dining room after which we went up to my uncle s room and sat over the fire inthe twilight till his afternoon nap was over and he was ready for his tea This was ready forhim by the time he awoke Chrissy got up on the bed beside him I got up at the foot of thebed facing her and we had the tea tray and plenty of etceteras between us Adela Cathcart George MacDonald,2020-05-22 When Harry had finished reading the colonel gallantly declared that the story was the best they had had Mrs Armstrong received this as a joke and begged him not to be so unsparing Ah Mrs Armstrong returned he laughing you are not old enough yet to know the truth from a joke Don t you agree with me about the story Mrs Cathcart I think it is very pretty and romantic Such men as Uncle Peter are not very common in the world The story is not too true to Nature This she said in a tone intended to indicate superior acquaintance with the world and its nature I fear Mrs Cathcart and some others whom I could name mean by Nature something very bad indeed which yet an artist is bound to be loyal to The colonel however seemed to be of a different opinion Adela Cathcart George MacDonald,2020-05-22 When Harry had finished reading the colonel gallantly declared that the story was the best they had had Mrs Armstrong received this as a joke and begged him not to be so unsparing Ah Mrs Armstrong returned he laughing you are not old enough yet to know the truth from a joke Don t you agree with me about the story Mrs Cathcart I think it is very pretty and romantic Such men as Uncle Peter are not very common in the world The story is not too true to Nature This she said in a tone intended to indicate superior acquaintance with the world and its nature I fear Mrs Cathcart and some others whom I could name mean by Nature something very bad indeed which yet an artist is bound to be loyal to The colonel however seemed to be of a different opinion Adela Cathcart, Vol 3 George MacDonald,2020-01-15 And the king said to himself All the queens of my acquaintance have children some three some seven an some as many as twelve and my queen has not one I feel ill used So he made up his mind to be cross with his wife about it But she bore it all like a good patient queen as she was Then the king grew very cross indeed But the queen pretended to take it all as a joke and a very good one too Adela Cathcart Volume 3 - Scholar's Choice Edition George MacDonald,2015-02-17 This work has been selected by scholars as being culturally important and is part of the knowledge base of civilization as we know it This work was reproduced from the original artifact and remains as true to the original work as possible Therefore you will see the original copyright references library stamps as most of these works have been housed in our most important libraries around the world and other notations in the work This work is in the public domain in the United States of America and possibly other nations Within the United States you may freely copy and distribute this work as no entity individual or corporate has a copyright on the body of the work As a reproduction of a historical artifact this work may contain missing or blurred pages poor pictures errant marks etc Scholars believe and we concur that this work is important enough to be preserved reproduced and made generally available to the public We appreciate your support of the preservation process and thank you for being an important part of keeping this knowledge alive and relevant Adela

Cathcart George MacDonald, 2005-06 A collection of fairy tales parables and poems by MacDonald some of which had already appeared in periodicals Adela Cathcart (Complete) George MacDonald, It was the afternoon of Christmas Eve sinking towards the night All day long the wintry light had been diluted with fog and now the vanguard of the darkness coming to aid the mist the dying day was well nigh smothered between them When I looked through the window it was into a vague and dim solidification of space a mysterious region in which awful things might be going on and out of which anything might come but out of which nothing came in the meantime except small sparkles of snow or rather ice which as we swept rapidly onwards and the darkness deepened struck faster and faster against the weather windows For we that is myself and a fellow passenger of whom I knew nothing yet but the waistcoat and neckcloth having caught a glimpse of them as he searched for an obstinate railway ticket were in a railway carriage darting along at an all but frightful rate northwards from London Being the sole occupants of the carriage we had made the most of it like Englishmen by taking seats diagonally opposite to each other laying our heads in the corners and trying to go to sleep But for me it was of no use to try any longer Not that I had anything particular on my mind or spirits but a man cannot always go to sleep at spare moments If anyone can let him consider it a great gift and make good use of it accordingly that is by going to sleep on every such opportunity As I however could not sleep much as I should have enjoyed it I proceeded to occupy my very spare time with building up what I may call a conjectural mould into which the face dress carriage but this added to my difficulties in constructing the said mould For theoretically I had a great dislike to clergymen having hitherto always found that the clergy absorbed the man and that the cloth as they called it even themselves would be no bad epithet for the individual as well as the class For all clergymen whom I had yet met regarded mankind and their interests solely from the clerical point of view seeming far more desirous that a man should be a good church man as they called it than that he should love God Hence there was always an indescribable and to me unpleasant odour of their profession about them If they knew more concerning the life of the world than other men why should everything they said remind one of mustiness and mildew In a word why were they not men at worst when at best they ought to be more of men than other men And here lay the difficulty by no effort could I get the face before me to fit into the clerical mould which I had all ready in my own mind for it That was at all events the face of a man in spite of waistcoat and depilation I was not even surprised when all at once he sat upright in his seat and asked me if I would join him in a cigar I gladly consented And here let me state a fact which added then to my interest in my fellow passenger and will serve now to excuse the enormity of smoking in a railway carriage We were going to the same place we must be and nobody would enter that carriage to night but the man who had to clean it For although we were shooting along at a terrible rate the train would not stop to set us down but would cast us loose a mile from our station and some minutes after it had shot by like an infernal comet of darkness our carriage would trot gently up to the platform as if it had come from London all on its own hook and thought nothing of it We were a long way yet however from our destination The night grew darker and colder and after the necessary unmuffling occasioned by the cigar process we drew our wraps closer about us leaned back in our corners and smoked away in silence the red glow of our cigars serving to light the carriage nearly as well as the red nose of the neglected and half extinguished lamp For we were in a second class carriage a fact for which I leave the clergyman to apologize it is nothing to me for I am nobody A Supplement to Allibone's Critical Dictionary of English Literature and British and American Authors ... John Foster Kirk,1891 "A" Critical Dictionary of English Literature and British and American Authors, Living and Deceased, from the Earliest Accounts to the Latter Half of the Nineteenth Century S.
