Reflections Adapted to the Holy Seasons of the Christian and Ecclesiastical Year John BREWSTER (Rector of Eggescliffe.),1834 Reflections adapted to the holy seasons of the Christian and ecclesiastical year John Brewster,1834

Mimesis and Its Romantic Reflections Frederick Burwick,2010-11-01 In Romantic theories of art and literature the notion of mimesis defined as art s reflection of the external world became introspective and self reflexive as poets and artists sought to represent the act of creativity itself Frederick Burwick seeks to elucidate this Romantic aesthetic first by offering an understanding of key Romantic mimetic concepts and then by analyzing manifestations of the mimetic process in literary works of the period Burwick explores the mimetic concepts of art for art s sake Idem et Alter and palingenesis of mind as art by drawing on the theories of Philo of Alexandria Aristotle Immanuel Kant Friedrich Schiller Friederich Wilhelm Joseph von Schelling Thomas De Quincey and Germaine de Sta l Having established the philosophical bases of these key mimetic concepts Burwick analyzes manifestations of mimesis in the literature of the period including ekphrasis in the work of Thomas De Quincey mirrored images in the poems of Samuel Taylor Coleridge and William Wordsworth and the twice told tale in the novels of Charles Brockden Brown E T A Hoffmann and James Hogg Although artists of this period have traditionally been dismissed in discussions of mimesis Burwick demonstrates that mimetic concepts comprised a major component of the Romantic aesthetic

Adapt Or Perish Leon Lessinger,Brian Redmond,2015-12-18 The theme of this book is that human beings are better off when they add an e to human and become humane To be humane is to avoid being cruel to others and to act in ways that benefit not only ourselves but other people too The book is offered as a Christmas present to both religious and non religious persons in the belief that all people can appreciate that Divinity becoming human is an idea that could spur humans toward better conduct if they sought the divine within themselves Our scientific expertise has given us god like powers If we join this talent to the emotional talent of compassion and empathy we will be virtuous in the old sense of skillful at living and we will save both ourselves and our planet

Tradition, Community, and Nationhood in Richard Wagner's Die Meistersinger von Nürnberg Christopher Kimbell,2024-07-02 Since its premiere in 1868 Wagner s Die Meistersinger von N rnberg has defied repeated upheavals in the cultural political landscape of German statehood to retain its unofficial status as the German national opera The work s significance as a touchstone of national culture survived even such troubling episodes as its public endorsement in 1933 as the most German of all German operas by Joseph Goebbels or the rendition in previous years by audiences at Bayreuth of both national and Nazi party anthems at the work s culmination This chequered reception history and apparent propensity for reinterpretation or reclamation has long fuelled debates over the socio political meanings of Wagner s musical narrative On the question of Beckmesser for instance heated arguments have surrounded the existence of antisemitic stereotypes in the work as well as their possible indication of a racial political dimension to Sachs s restoration of Nuremberg society Through a combination of musical textual analysis with critical theory this book interrogates the ideological underpinnings of Die Meistersinger s narrative In four interconnected studies of the characters of Walther Sachs Beckmesser and Eva the book traces a critical potential within the opera s construction of provincial and national identities and problematizes existing discourse around its depiction of race and gender

Managing Protected Areas in Central and Eastern Europe Under Climate Change

Sven Rannow,Marco Neubert,2014-01-18 Beginning with an overview of data and concepts developed in the EU project HABIT CHANGE this book addresses the need for sharing knowledge and experience in the field of biodiversity conservation and climate change There is an urgent need to build capacity in protected areas to monitor assess manage and report the effects of climate change and their interaction with other pressures The contributors identify barriers to the adaptation of conservation management such as the mismatch between planning reality and the decision context at site level Short and vivid descriptions of case studies drawn from investigation areas all over Central and Eastern Europe illustrate both the local impacts of climate change and their consequences for future management These focus on ecosystems most vulnerable to changes in climatic conditions including alpine areas wetlands forests lowland grasslands and coastal areas The case studies demonstrate the application of adaptation strategies in protected areas like National Parks Biosphere Reserves and Natural Parks and reflect the potential benefits as well as existing obstacles A general section provides the necessary background information on climate trends and their effects on abiotic and biotic components Often the parties to policy change and conservation management including managers land users and stakeholders lack both expertise and incentives to undertake adaptation activities The authors recognise that achieving the needed changes in behavior habit is as much a social learning process as a matter of science based procedure They describe the implementation of modeling impact assessment and monitoring of climate conditions and show how the results can support efforts to increase stakeholder involvement in local adaptation strategies The book concludes by pointing out the need for more work to communicate the cross sectoral nature of biodiversity protection the value of well informed planning in the long term process of adaptation the definition of acceptable change and the motivational value of exchanging experience and examples of good practice

Suffering and Sentiment in Romantic Military Art Philip Shaw, 2017-07-05 In a moving intervention into Romantic era depictions of the dead and wounded Philip Shaw's timely study directs our gaze to the neglected figure of the common soldier How suffering and sentiment were portrayed in a variety of visual and verbal media is Shaw's particular concern as he examines a wide range of print and visual media from paintings to sketches to political prose and anti war poetry and from writings on culture and aesthetics to graphic satires and early photographs Whilst classical portraiture and history painting certainly conspired with official ideologies to deflect attention from the true costs of war other works of art literary as well as visual proffered representations that countered the view that suffering on and off the battlefield is noble or heroic Shaw uncovers a history of changing attitudes towards suffering from mid eighteenth century ambivalence to late eighteenth and early nineteenth century concepts of moral sentiment Thus Shaw's story is one of how images of death and wounding facilitated and queried these shifts in the perception of war qualifying as well as consolidating ideas of individual and national unanimity Informed by readings of the letters and journals of serving soldiers surgeons notebooks and sketches and the writings of peace and war agitators Shaw's study shows how an attention to the depiction of suffering and the development of liberal sentiment enables a reconfiguring of historical and theoretical notions of the body as a site of pain and as a locus of violent national imaginings
