Mount Kenya University 2015 September Intake:

The Atlas of Water Maggie Black, 2016-09 Water may soon be one of our most valuable commodities. The growing demands made on a finite resource by an increasing number of people adopting urban lifestyles and western diets coupled with a changing and less predictable climate are putting pressure on the planet's freshwater supply as never before. By 2025 four billion people may be living in conditions of water stress. And even where water is plentiful the poor are unlikely to have ready access to a safe, cheap supply. The new edition of this timely atlas analyzes the latest thinking and emerging issues. Completely updated, it maps the competing claims on limited water resources made by farmers, industrialists and householders and investigates the nature of the resource, its uses and abuses as well as the vexed question of how it can be managed equitably. The Sociology of Food and Agriculture Michael Carolan, 2016-02-12 In this second edition of The Sociology of Food and Agriculture students are provided with a substantially revised and updated introductory text to this emergent field. The book begins with the recent development of agriculture under capitalism and neo-liberal regimes and the transformation of farming and peasant agriculture from a small-scale family-run way of life to a globalized system. Topics such as the global hunger and obesity challenges, GM foods and international trade and subsidies are assessed as part of the world food economy. The final section concentrates on themes of sustainability, food security and food sovereignty. The book concludes on a positive note examining alternative agri-food movements aimed at changing foodscapes at levels from the local to the global. With increased coverage of the financialization of food, food and culture, gender, ethnicity and justice, food security and food sovereignty, the book is perfect for students with little or no background in sociology and is also suitable for more advanced courses as a comprehensive primer. All chapters include learning objectives, suggested discussion questions and recommendations for further reading to aid student learning.

Brief review of Ghana's food system transformation pathways Asante, Felix A.,2024-03-25 Global estimates show over half a billion people go hungry FAO 2020 and close to 2 billion people are either obese or overweight with another 2 billion of the world s population suffering from micronutrient deficiencies Micha et al 2020 Fresco et al 2017 Inarguably the world faces significant malnutrition problem including micro and macro nutrient deficiencies obesity and diet related non communicable diseases This is evident in a recent analysis pointing out that effort in achieving the Global Nutrition Targets is likely to be missed The observed malnutrition threat is accompanied by climate change which is influencing food production and consumption trends and thereby leading to undernutrition and affecting overall development In addition there are growing incomes accelerated urbanization and expanding middle classes which are also causing significant changes in consumer behaviour and nutritional choices necessitating both public and private expenditures for better food market integration As a result there is a pressing need to examine our food systems to guarantee food and nutrition security and to advance sustainable development It is likely that the COVID 19 impact may further exacerbates the worsening food insecurity and nutritional status of the most vulnerable groups including women children and adolescents refugees and displaced people smallholders in rural areas and the urban poor
