

HI: THE MYSTERY OF THE MISSING AWARD

1. On the last day of winter, Merit Middle school gave out its term two academic and athletic awards. To no-one's surprise except his own, the silver shield for best grade 7 basketball player was given to the school's top scorer, Duncan Pass. This was Duncan's first award. He had never been successful in anything before. The award was a big deal for Duncan. A big, BIG deal.
2. His proud parents picked him up from the awards ceremony and took him out for a celebration meal. They treated Duncan, and his coach, Jim Shortz, to a special dinner at a lobster restaurant called Just Beclaws. There was a spare seat at the table, so Duncan very carefully placed his engraved shield there.
3. After spending the first part of the evening admiring his shiny, circular shield, he became interested in the restaurant. He had never been to a fancy restaurant before- to anywhere fancy, in fact. Both he and Mr Shortz giggled when a server called Duncan "Sir." Each table had a huge red tablecloth that brushed the floor, and the crystal water glasses and cutlery gleamed in the light of the glitzy chandelier. By the kitchen, large tanks of water were crammed with lobsters and crabs scuttling around. The customers selected the lobster or crab they wanted to eat from the tanks. After the lobster or crab was cooked, it was delivered to the customer's table on a silver tray by a smiling server.
4. As Duncan stared around the large room, a less than pleasant sight met his eyes. A few tables away, Terry Bull, a member of his basketball team, was slurping a vast bowl of clam chowder.
