observations some individual maser spots vary in intensity by a factor of 10 Besides revealing the growth and decline of the different maser spots we had hoped to observe the separation of the red and blue shifted masers The source I16342 has been previously measured to be about 3 arcsec in breadth The data was imaged with a 2 arcsec pixel definition so it was predicted that the masers might be separated by some 15 pixels This was not observed and s it prompts the researcher to reduce and image the overlapping data of I16342 from the VLBA Scientific and Technical Aerospace Reports ,1992
