Consciousness Robert Pepperell, Michael Punt, 2006. This collection of essays is driven by the question of how we know what we know and, in particular, how we can be certain about something even when we know it is an illusion. The contention of the book is that this age-old question has acquired a new urgency as certain trends in science, technology, and ideas have taken the discussion of consciousness out of the philosophy department and deposited it in the world at large. As a consequence, a body of literature from many fields has produced its own sets of concerns and methods under the rubric of Consciousness Studies. Each contribution in this collection deals with issues and questions that lots of people have been thinking about for many years in many different contexts, things such as the nature of film, cinema, world, mind, and so on. Those of us fascinated by these diverse yet related issues may have often felt we were working in a disciplinary no-man's-land. Now, suddenly, it seems with Consciousness Studies we have a coherent intellectual home, albeit one that is self-consciously eclectic. The essays included in Screen Consciousness: Cinema, Mind, and World are from a range of disciplines: art, philosophy, film theory, anthropology, and technology studies, each represented by significant international figures and each concerned with how their field is being transformed by the new discipline of Consciousness Studies. Together, they attempt to reconcile the oncoming rush of new data from science and technology about how we know what we know with the insights gained from the long view of history, philosophy, and art. Each of the contributions seeks to interpose Consciousness Studies between film and mind, where, for cultural theorists, psychoanalysis had traditionally stood. This is more than simply updating Film Studies or nodding in the direction of cognitive film theory. Film, with all its sentient, sensuous, and social qualities, is a common reference point between all these forces, and Consciousness Studies provides the intellectual impetus for this book to revisit familiar problems with fresh insight. ThirdWay, 1995-02. Monthly current affairs magazine from a Christian perspective with a focus on politics, society, economics, and culture. Science Fiction Experiences Angela Ndalianis, 2011. Exploring how science fiction films and computer games attempt to come to grips with the changing conceptions of the world and people's identity within it Ndalianis focuses on developments that have taken place in science fiction media over the last two decades

Transforming the Screen, 1950-1959 Peter Lev, 2003 Covering a tumultuous period of the 1950s this work explores the divorce of movie studios from their theater chains the panic of the blacklist era the explosive emergence of science fiction as the dominant genre and the rise of television and Hollywood's response with widescreen spectacles Books and
