Indigenous Peoples, Customary Law and Human Rights - Why Living Law Matters Brendan Tobin, 2014-08-27

This highly original work demonstrates the fundamental role of customary law for the realization of Indigenous peoples human rights and for sound national and international legal governance. The book reviews the legal status of customary law and its relationship with positive and natural law from the time of Plato up to the present. It examines its growing recognition in constitutional and international law and its dependence on and at times strained relationship with human rights law. The author analyzes the role of customary law in tribal national and international governance of Indigenous peoples lands resources and cultural heritage. He explores the challenges and opportunities for its recognition by courts and alternative dispute resolution mechanisms including issues of proof of law and conflicts between customary practices and human rights. He throws light on the richness inherent in legal diversity and key principles of customary law and their influence in legal practice and on emerging notions of intercultural equity and justice. He concludes that Indigenous peoples rights to their customary legal regimes and states obligations to respect and recognize customary law in order to secure their human rights are principles of international customary law and as such binding on all states. At a time when the self-determination land resources and cultural heritage of Indigenous peoples are increasingly under threat, this accessible book presents the key issues for both legal and non-legal scholars, practitioners, students of human rights and environmental justice, and Indigenous peoples themselves.

Unlocking the Lower Skies Aiga Stokenberga, Maria Catalina Ochoa, 2021-06-08. This book explores the economic and broader societal rationale for using unmanned aerial vehicle (UAV) or drone technologies as a complement to the current transport and logistics systems in several use cases in East Africa. The specific use cases examined include medical goods deliveries, food aid delivery, land mapping and risk assessment, agriculture and transport, and energy infrastructure inspection. Across these applications, the case for using UAVs is examined within the context of logistics objectives: total operating costs, speed, availability, and flexibility, as well as human or societal objectives. In the public health use case, as more low and middle income countries explore opportunities to improve efficiency and performance in their health supply chains and diagnostics networks, they face myriad choices about how best to use UAVs to improve product availability and public health outcomes and to reach the last mile. The high-level findings from this analysis are that if examining commodity categories individually and looking exclusively at costs, delivery with UAVs in general is still more expensive for most categories. Although the cost is still higher, the most cost-effective use case examples include the transport of laboratory samples to selected destinations and delivery of life-saving items and blood. However, layering several use cases can provide efficiencies and cost savings by allocating fixed costs across a greater number of flights and maximizing capacity and time utilization. From the perspective of public decision makers, the cost effectiveness of UAVs cannot be analyzed without looking at the public health benefits, which may be substantial. Drone application in the other use cases examined in this book such as mapping risk assessment and agriculture is relatively more common than cargo drone operations and the existing pilot initiatives in East Africa have delivered impressive results for speed and quality precision Food aid delivery by drones is still mostly at a planning rather than implementation stage Drone applications are rapidly evolving and several use cases could gain impact and scale over the coming years Cross-cutting issues in the water, land, energy and food security nexus: Perspectives from sub-saharan africa Felix Kwabena Donkor,Mulala Danny Simatele,Henry Bikwibili
