

Comparing Revolutions: American, French, and Bolshevik/Russian

Directions: Highlighting revolutions, students have identified common stages that revolutions follow. Study the stages below from the book Preface to History by Carl G. Linder, and use the examples from the American revolution provided. At your table, come up with similar examples using your knowledge and notes of the French Revolution.

STAGE	AMERICAN REVOLUTION	FRENCH REVOLUTION	BOLSHEVIK REVOLUTION
1. Groups denounce existing conditions and provide new goals and ideas.	Colonial subjects protested such laws like the Stamp Act and Tea Act, and leaders encouraged conflict with British and for free.	Enlightenment thinkers like Voltaire and Rousseau wrote about freedom, rights, natural rights, liberty, equality, democracy.
2. Public discontent results in acts and other acts of violence.	Colonists engaged in protests and boycotts, including the Boston Tea Party.	Storming the prison of Bastille, taking weapons, and killing the guinea when they did not have their demands met. They attacked the homes of the nobles.
3. The ruling group is frightened into making negotiated concessions between new power is established.	King George III and the British Parliament repeal the taxes but the war still occurs, the British lose the war and the colonies become their own independent country with their own power.	The 27 October forced Louis to sign the Tennis Court Oath, a new constitution that limits his powers. This turned France into a constitutional monarchy.
4. The reformers carry out their reforms, but if their measures are drastic, the nation splits into rival groups.	The first form of government, the Articles of Confederation, is early weak and the nation is split between Federalists and Anti-Federalists as they fight to reform the country.	National Assembly reformed the church, bringing it under state control. People are divided into radicals, conservatives, and moderates.
5. Radicals seize power from moderates and try to impose their ideas on the nation.	Colonial leaders create an entirely new constitution at the Constitutional Convention in 1787 and create a new system of government based on the US Constitution.	Robespierre and the radicals took over and started the Reign of Terror. The monarchy was abolished, Louis was removed from office and executed. 40,000 people killed via guillotine.
6. The people tire of the radicals, and moderates regain power.	Anti-Federalists threatened gained the addition of a bill of rights to the Constitution.	Robespierre is killed and the moderates create a new government making France a Republic and ending the Reign of Terror.
