Remote Sensing of Aquatic Coastal Ecosystem Processes Laurie L. Richardson, Ellsworth F. LeDrew, 2006-06-11

The aquatic coastal zone is one of the most challenging targets for environmental remote sensing Properties such as bottom reflectance spectrally diverse suspended sediments and phytoplankton communities diverse benthic communities and transient events that affect surface reflectance coastal blooms runoff etc all combine to produce an optical complexity not seen in terrestrial or open ocean systems Despite this complexity remote sensing is proving to be an invaluable tool for Case 2 waters This book presents recent advances in coastal remote sensing with an emphasis on applied science and management Case studies of the operational use of remote sensing in ecosystem studies monitoring and interfacing remote sensing science management are presented Spectral signatures of phytoplankton and suspended sediments are discussed in detail with accompanying discussion of why blue water Case 1 algorithms cannot be applied to Case 2 waters Audience This book is targeted for scientists and managers interested in using remote sensing in the study or management of aquatic coastal environments With only limited discussion of optics and theory presented in the book such researchers might benefit from the detailed presentations of aquatic spectral signatures and to operational management issues While not specifically written for remote sensing scientists it will prove to be a useful reference for this community for the current status of aquatic coastal remote sensing

An Ecological Framework for Marine Fishery Investigations J. F. Caddy, Gary D. Sharp, 1986-01-01

The text is intended as supplementary reading for fisheries workers especially in developing countries who do not always have ready access to current literature on applied marine ecology An attempt is made to develop a wide range of concepts in a form that will hopefully encourage their incorporation into a practical decision making context The food web and associated trophic interactions form the principal theme in an approach that gives equal emphasis to qualitative as well as the less easily measured quantitative considerations An attempt is made to illustrate the consequences of the aggregated nature of much of marine production as well as the subsequent dispersal of production in space and time and how these processes affect the potential for economic harvest of commercial components of the ecosystem Separate sections touch on environmental influences on production relevant spatial and temporal scales for ecosystem analysis life history strategies diversity and stability the concepts of the ecological niche the community and the assemblage and outline some first steps towards quantifying production in marine ecosystems Different approaches to representing trophic and other interactions are discussed with examples from the literature Reference is made to several ecological subsystems in order to illustrate the main concepts presented These include the mangrove ecosystem the arcto boreal macrophyte community a mediterranean demersal fish assemblage and the oceanic ecosystem associated with high seas tuna stocks In practical terms it is concluded that the first and simplest approach to multispecies resource management is not necessarily the manipulation of individual food web components but the identification mapping and conservation of critical habitats especially centres of local production and their associated ecological dissipation structures

Atlas of Ecosystem Services Matthias Schröter, Aletta Bonn, Stefan Klotz, Ralf Seppelt, Cornelia Baessler, 2019-01-31 This book aims to identify present and discuss key driving forces and pressures on ecosystem services Ecosystem services are the contributions that ecosystems provide to human well being The scope of this atlas is on identifying solutions and lessons to be applied across science policy and practice The atlas will address different components of ecosystem services assess risks and vulnerabilities and outline governance and management opportunities The atlas will therefore attract a wide audience both from policy and practice and from different scientific disciplines The emphasis will be on ecosystems in Europe as the available data on service provision is best developed for this region and recognizes the strengths of the contributing authors Ecosystems of regions outside Europe will be covered where possible
