Accelerations and Circular Motion

Newton's second law, and PWS, tells us that net force and its corresponding acceleration are always in the same direction. (Only force-related accelerations are vector quantities.) But force and acceleration are not always in the direction of velocity (another vector).

1. You're in a car at a traffic light. The light turns green and the driver "rips on the gas."

- Your body lurches forward (not at all backward).
- The car accelerates forward (not at all backward).
- The force on the car acts forward (not at all backward).

The sketch shows the top view of the car. Note the directions of the velocity and acceleration vectors.

2. You're driving along and approach a stop sign. The driver rips on the brakes.

- Your body lurches backward (not at all forward).
- The car accelerates backward (not at all forward).
- The force on the car acts backward (not at all forward).

The sketch shows the top view of the car. Draw vectors for velocity and acceleration.

3. You continue driving, and round a sharp curve to the left at constant speed.

- Your body lurches backward (not at all forward).
- The direction of the car's acceleration is backward (not at all forward).
- The force on the car acts backward (not at all forward).

Draw vectors for velocity and acceleration of the car.

4. In general, the directions of lurch and acceleration, and therefore the directions of force and force, are the same (not related) opposite.

- The whirling stone's direction of motion keeps changing.
 - If it moves faster, its direction changes faster (slower).
 - This indicates that as speed increases, acceleration increases (decreases) (stays the same).
- Consider whirling the stone on a shorter string—that is, of smaller radius.
 - For a given speed, the rate that the stone changes direction is less faster (like same).
 - This indicates that as the radius decreases, acceleration decreases (increases) (stays the same).

which they developed their theories therefore the tendency was to describe processes that were based on theories developed in other disciplines mainly the physical and social sciences And an implicit assumption was made that there should be a single strategy for theory development some claiming to begin the process from practice and others believing it should be driven by research Provided by publisher Innovating Capacity for (deweyan) Continuity of Inquiry in the Face of (zimbardoean) Discontinuity Within the Context of Engineering Education Research Bhavna Hariharan,2011 Growing awareness of the crises faced by underserved communities in the developing regions of the world has led engineering educators to reflect on how they can contribute solutions to the basic needs of such communities Student engineers today are searching for opportunities to work with communities in the developing world to improve the living conditions of the multitudes who suffer chronic poverty and live in desperate conditions The research in this thesis was inspired by the experiences of students working on a project aimed at creating sustainable prosperity through the introduction of visual literacy in a chronically poor community where it was found that such research collaborations can prove to be overwhelming Viewing these disruptive experiences from the perspectives of Zimbardo s discontinuity theory showed that such unbounded learning environments that expose students to disorienting experiences of discontinuity restrict the students ability to learn Viewing the experiences of Zimbardoean discontinuity through Dewey s philosophy of education led to the creation of a research inquiry space that identified the feasibility of restoring continuity of learning through innovation in engineering education research and practices In this space student and teacher experiences can be visualized as a function of the learning environment and modes of learning and teaching Engineering education research and practices currently face open questions about preparing students for working with developing communities safely and enabling them to continue learning This dissertation attempts to respond by asking the following two questions 1 How can the experiences of discontinuity be shifted to learning experiences 2 How do student engineers learn under such conditions To answer these questions a research project was conceived that brought together undergraduate engineering students at Stanford University and a community of handloom weavers from a chronically poor village in India to collaborate on an engineering design problem faced by the community The students and weavers together addressed the challenge of creating retrofits for the handloom to make it more ergonomic The project was implemented in accordance with a framework that was developed to incorporate five project parameters for creating a safe learning environment The research project data was collected in the form of entries made in reflection journals by the student participants A coding scheme was developed to observe and analyze the shift from experiences of discontinuity to experiences of learning In response to the two research questions the analysis showed that the research project was successful in providing a learning environment that enabled the student engineers to transition out of discontinuities and learn in that process The learning mechanism was found to be an augmentation of the Deweyan inquiry process resulting in continuity of learning The future research directions emerging from this project are the creation of a curriculum as well as a learning environment These will prepare student engineers to work sustainably on problems of the developing world through collaborating with and learning from local communities Continued commitment from engineering researchers and educators will in time help build sustainable trusted collaborative relationships with underserved communities and encourage them to explore their own creative potential to help solve their problems Air traffic control system management capabilities improved, but more can be done to institutionalize improvements : report to congressional committees. ,2004 Rudolph's Pediatrics Self-Assessment and Board Review Michael deCastro Cabana,2013-10-22 Add the authority of Rudolph's Pediatrics to your Pediatric Board Examination review Rudolph's Pediatrics Self Assessment and Board Review is a fast efficient and engaging way for you to incorporate the contents of Rudolph's Pediatrics into your board preparation This powerful study guide delivers more than 1 500 questions that focus on epidemiology pathophysiology presenting symptoms clinical decision making therapeutics and prognosis of different pediatric disorders Concise answer explanations illustrate key points and include references to pertinent sections in Rudolph's Pediatrics for more in depth coverage of the topic You ll find everything you need in one comprehensive review questions referenced answers full color illustrations and the expertise of the field's leading text FEATURES More than 1 500 multiple choice questions with fully explained answers referenced to Rudolph's Pediatrics Twenty Second Edition An emphasis on important clinical issues An organization that simulates Rudolph's Pediatrics to facilitate side by side study Numerous full color images to test your visual diagnostic skills Designed to help you quickly assess your knowledge and remediate areas of weakness Valuable for certification recertification or as a clinical refresher Development Across the Life Span Robert Stephen Feldman,2003 This comprehensive and integrated text provides students with a broad overview of the field of human development covering the entire range of human life from the moment of conception through death and focusing on physical cognitive and social and personality development It covers basic theories and research findings as well as highlighting current applications outside the laboratory Moral Maturity John C.
