Core 1 May 2013:

Race, Gender, and Religion in the Vietnamese Diaspora Thien-Huong T. Ninh, 2017-08-15 This book examines how the racialization of religion facilitates the diasporic formation of ethnic Vietnamese in the U S and Cambodia two communities that have been separated from one another for nearly 30 years It compares devotion to female religious figures in two minority religions the Virgin Mary among the Catholics and the Mother Goddess among the Caodaists Visual culture and institutional structures are examined within both communities Thien Huong Ninh invites a critical re thinking of how race gender and religion are proxies for understanding theorizing and addressing social inequalities within global contexts

Applied Evolutionary Anthropology Mhairi A. Gibson, David W. Lawson, 2014-03-10 As a species we are currently experiencing dramatic shifts in our lifestyle family structure health and global contact Evolutionary Anthropology provides a powerful theoretical framework to study such changes revealing how current environments and legacies of past selection shape human diversity This book is the first major review of the emerging field of Applied Evolutionary Anthropology bringing together the work of an international group of evolutionary scientists addressing many of the major public health and social issues of this century Through a series of case studies that span both rural and urban situations in Africa Asia Europe and South America each chapter addresses topics such as natural resource management health service delivery population growth and the emergence of new family structures dietary and co operative behaviours The research presented identifies the great largely untapped potential that Applied Evolutionary Anthropology holds to guide the design implementation and evaluation of effective social and public health policy This book will be of interest to policy makers and applied researchers along with academics and students across the biological and social sciences Information and International Monetary Fund. African Dept., 2014-12-11 This 2014 Article IV Consultation highlights that South Africa's growth has slowed in recent years specifically relative to other emerging markets Although weak trading partners growth contributed to the slowdown increasingly binding structural constraints such as protracted strikes and electricity constraints have been important factors Unemployment remains high at 25.5 percent Notwithstanding expenditure discipline the general government budget deficit was 4.5 percent of GDP in 2013 and public debt rose to 45 percent of GDP from 27 percent in 2008 The outlook is lackluster with considerable risks Growth is projected to slow to 1.4 percent in 2014 and rebound only modestly to 2.1 percent in 2015 on improved industrial relations China Entering the Xi Jinping Era Zheng Yongnian, Lance L. P. Gore, 2014-11-20 How will China develop under the new leadership of Xi Jinping and Li Keqiang This is a key question for both China and the wider world This book presents a comprehensive overview of the key areas and issues assessing how things are likely to develop under the new leadership It considers the economy trade politics and demographics appraises the leadership both at the national and provincial levels and discusses potential flashpoints in China's relationship with its neighbors and China's emerging role in world politics The book emphasizes the great uncertainties surrounding the next phase of China's development highlighting the structural problems of the economy the problems of urbanization and governance and the deep social cleavages which exist over issues such as income disparity rampant corruption and unequal opportunities in social mobility Against this backdrop it measures the emerging leadership of Xi Jinping to assess the prospects for China in the next decade and beyond Serialization and Persistent Objects Jiri Soukup, Petr Macháček, 2014-04-23 Recently the pressure for fast processing and efficient storage of large data with complex relations increased beyond the capability of traditional databases Typical examples include iPhone applications computer aided design both electrical and mechanical biochemistry applications and incremental compilers Serialization which is sometimes used in such situations is notoriously tedious and error prone In this book Jiri Soukup and Petr Macháček show in detail how to write programs which store their internal data automatically and transparently to disk Together with special data structure libraries which treat relations among objects as first class entities and with a UML class diagram generator the core application code is much simplified The benchmark chapter shows a typical example where persistent data is faster by the order of magnitude than with a traditional database in both traversing and accessing the data The authors explore and exploit advanced features of object oriented languages in a depth hardly seen in print before Yet you as a reader need only a basic knowledge of C++ Java C or Objective C These languages are quite similar with respect to persistency and the authors explain their differences where necessary The book targets professional programmers working on any industry applications it teaches you how to design your own persistent data or how to use the existing packages efficiently Researchers in areas like language design compiler construction performance evaluation and no SQL applications will find a wealth of novel ideas and valuable implementation tips Under <http://www.codefarms.com> book you will find a blog and other information including a downloadable zip file with the sources of all the listings that are longer than just a few lines ready to compile and run Design Directions Alise Piebalga, Sylvia Tzvetanova Yung, 2014-07-03 This book is a collection of papers exploring how designers researchers and practitioners respond to the changing nature of contemporary perceptions of the relationship between humans and technology Originating from a workshop at the 2012 Design Research Society Conference in Bangkok the book presents diverse approaches from theoretical explorations to practical methods and educational solutions The papers are presented in three sections with the first providing background information to the workshop and the perceptions of the relationship between humans and technology Section two explores the theme of emotions and technology investigating emotional responses to design solutions methods for tracing facial and body expressions and the creation of the Kansei Design Education programmes The final section is titled Design and Technology and provides perspectives on how everyday and educational environments transform in response to the changing nature of the relationship between humans and technology The book does not aim to provide a unified voice on how design practices change in response to new technologies but it provides a platform for diverse cross disciplinary debates on how designers and design educators respond to the changes in our contemporary understanding of the humans technology relationship

Subsurface Sulfur Cycle and Other Elemental Cycles Alexandra V. Turchyn, Orit Sivan, Shuhei Ono, Tanja Bosak, 2018-11-16 Sulfur has many redox states and is a major metabolite in suboxic and anaerobic environments including but not restricted to marine and marginal marine sediments the water column of oxygen minimum zones salt marshes and oil wells Microbially mediated redox cycling of sulfur typically comprises dissimilatory sulfate reduction MSR sulfide reoxidation disproportionation and the oxidation and reduction of sulfur redox intermediates These processes contribute to the degradation of organic matter link the cycles of sulfur and carbon control the production and consumption of methane and are critical for the long term budget of O₂ in the atmosphere Microbial and abiotic processes at redox interfaces also connect the sulfur cycle to the redox cycles of nitrogen iron and other elements producing distinctive geochemical and molecular signatures Studies that couple microbiology with stable isotope geochemistry have informed interpretations of microbial sulfur cycling in modern and past environments Laboratory based studies and models of MSR have sought to understand the physiological and environmental controls of the magnitude of sulfur isotope fractionation The fractionations of stable sulfur and oxygen isotopes during MSR are also used to track enzymatic activity during MSR and processes that oxidize sulfide in the presence of environmental oxidants Outstanding questions in the field concern the importance of oxidative processes within the natural environment the delivery of oxidants and carbon sources to the zones of sulfate reduction and the ability to detect or reconstruct oxidative processes from the chemical isotopic metagenomic transcriptomic proteomic and metabolomics profiles in the environment Recent studies have emphasized the complex connections between sulfur and methane iron nitrogen and other elements These links may involve the redox cycling of species that occur at concentrations difficult to detect by standard geochemical techniques or that are cycled at very rapid rates cryptic cycles Of particular interest is the use of isotope geochemistry to quantify links among various electron acceptors including sulfate ferric iron and nitrate during the anaerobic methane oxidation For example recent geochemical measurements have hinted that microbial sulfate reduction coupled to organic matter oxidation is mechanistically different to when sulfate reduction is coupled to methane oxidation Recent studies have also suggested a possible contribution of a number of previously uncultured microbial groups in sulfur cycling in sulfidic environments inspiring further studies of these organisms and their partnerships in anaerobic environments This Research Topic highlights studies of microbial interactions processes and communities that couple the sulfur cycle to the cycles of other elements in aphotic environments Assessing Maritime Power in the Asia-Pacific Greg Kennedy, Harsh V.
