The Economics of Contracts Eric Brousseau, Jean-Michel Glachant, 2002-10-17. A contract is an agreement under which two parties make reciprocal commitments in terms of their behavior to coordinate. As this concept has become essential to economics in the last 30 years, three main theoretical frameworks have emerged: incentive theory, incomplete contract theory, and transaction costs theory. These frameworks have enabled scholars to renew both the microeconomics of coordination with implications for industrial organization, labor economics, law, and economics organization design, and the macroeconomics of market decentralized economies and of the institutional framework. These developments have resulted in new analyses of a firm's strategy and State intervention, regulation of public utilities, anti-trust, public procurement, institutional design, liberalization policies, etc. Based on contributions by the leading scholars in the field, this 2002 book provides an overview of developments in these analytical currents, presents their various aspects, and proposes expanding horizons for theoreticians and practitioners.

Agency Theory, Information, and Incentives Günter Bamberg, Klaus Spremann, 2012-12-06. Agency Theory is a new branch of economics which focusses on the roles of information and of incentives when individuals cooperate with respect to the utilisation of resources. Basic approaches are coming from microeconomic theory as well as from risk analysis. Among the broad variety of applications are the many designs of contractual arrangements, organizations and institutions as well as the manifold aspects of the separation of ownership and control so fundamental for business finance. After some twenty years of intensive research in the field of information economics, it might be timely to present the most basic issues, questions, models, and applications. This volume

Agency Theory Information and Incentives offers introductory surveys as well as results of individual research that seem to shape that field of information economics appropriately. Some 30 authors were invited to present their subjects in such a way that students could easily become acquainted with the main ideas of information economics. So the aim of Agency Theory Information and Incentives is to introduce students at an intermediate level and to accompany their work in classes on microeconomics, information economics, organization management theory, and business finance. The topics selected form the eight sections of the book: 1 Agency Theory and Risk Sharing 2 Information and Incentives 3 Capital Markets and Moral Hazard 4 Financial Contracting and Dividends 5 External Accounting and Auditing 6 Coordination in Groups 7 Property Rights and Fairness 8 Agency Costs
