

The Biggest Sandcastle

I thought our beach trip this year wasn't going to be any fun. My friend was going to come with us but then couldn't at the last minute. I didn't have any brothers or sisters, so who was supposed to play with me?

When we got to the beach the first day I saw lots of kids playing with their brothers and sisters and friends. I walked down to the water and touched it. It was cold and a dead jellyfish floated by me. No thanks. I walked down the beach hoping to find a cool seashell but there were so many people around that all the good ones were already taken.

Then I saw two kids making a huge pile of sand. I didn't realize that I was staring at them until one looked up at me. "Do you want to help us make the biggest sandcastle ever?" the one boy asked. I looked back at my mom up the beach. She smiled at me. "Sure," I replied.

Together we worked all afternoon on our sandcastle. By the time we were finished it was almost as tall as we were! "Do you want to make a taller one tomorrow?" the other boy asked. "Yes!" I replied excitedly. Maybe the vacation wouldn't be as boring and I thought it would be.

how these instructional levels are determined is suspect With a comprehensive critical analysis of instructional level pedagogy Shanahan exposes its shaky foundations and shows how faulty research findings have become so entrenched He gathers an extensive body of research studies that overwhelmingly contradict the instructional level theory and offers an evidence based consideration of how educators must instead use grade level reading to bring about maximum learning gains This seminal book concludes with practical advice for implementing grade level reading instruction including detailed descriptions of the types of instruction and scaffolding needed to increase students reading achievement from teaching decoding and challenging texts to scaffolding reading to maintaining motivation Shanahan asserts that a better approach can ensure that all students have an opportunity to leave high school with reading abilities commensurate with their personal social civic and economic goals
