Impact evaluation report: Egypt's forsa graduation program Gilligan, Daniel O.,Kurdi, Sikandra,Tabe-Ojong, Martin Paul Jr.,Yassa, Basma,2022-12-12 Forsa which means Opportunity in Arabic is a new economic inclusion program of the government of the Arab Republic of Egypt Implemented by the Ministry of Social Solidarity the program aims to graduate beneficiaries of the national cash transfer program the Takaful Karama Program TKP to economic self reliance by enabling them to engage in wage employment or sustainable economic enterprises The 2021 World Bank Economic Inclusion report Andrews et al 2021 highlights a recent increase globally in such graduation or economic inclusion programs which now reaches around 92 million beneficiaries from 20 million households across more than 75 countries This rapid growth has necessitated an increasing demand for evidence on best practices in graduation program implementation The newly designed Forsa program is based on the graduation approach but with innovations drawing from theories of behavioral economics as well as creating a network of active youth volunteers for economic empowerment to reduce costs compared to the standard BRAC inspired model Forsa also expands the graduation model to include the option of wage employment rather than only focusing on self employment Evidence on the impact of job training programs linked to wage employment on both job retention and future earnings is mixed McKenzie 2017 although most such programs do not include cash assistance This impact evaluation of the Forsa program in Egypt is intended to contribute to the global evidence on effective graduation program design as well as provide immediate policy relevant guidance for the Ministry of Social Solidarity The impact evaluation will measure the degree to which Forsa is successful at increasing household consumption and will investigate which participant groups and program features demonstrate the greatest improvements in household welfare and economic activity

Displacement and development: Evidence from a graduation program for Somalia's ultra-poor Leight, Jessica,Hirvonen, Kalle,Karachiwalla, Naureen,Rakshit, Deboleena,2025-09-15 While the population of internally displaced people around the world continues to grow evidence around strategies to sustainably enhance livelihoods among IDPs remains extremely limited We present findings from a randomized trial of an ultra poor graduation program targeting IDPs in urban Baidoa Somalia the intervention provided cash transfers an asset transfer or technical training program and facilitated savings groups Our findings suggest that two years following program launch the intervention has led to significant increases in consumption assets and savings however these effects seem to be driven almost exclusively by increased livestock production An exploration of heterogeneous effect using generalized random forest methods further suggests that the positive effects of the treatment are dramatically larger for smaller households characterized by lower dependency ratios program of the government of the Arab Republic of Egypt Implemented by the Ministry of Social Solidarity MoSS one major goal of the program is to graduate beneficiaries of Takaful to economic self reliance by enabling them to engage in wage employment or small scale productive enterprises 2 The Forsa program began in 2023 after significant delays Obstacles to implementation included the Covid 19 pandemic nationwide inflation subsequent to the Ukraine Russia war resulting in funding challenges for asset purchases and administrative challenges with procurement approvals by the Ministry of Finance Forsa implementation was conducted under MoSS super vision by local non governmental organizations NGOs While a few NGOs received their first payments in the first quarter of 2022 most NGOs received their first payments in October 2022 delaying program implementation to February 2023 According to the MoSS in the second half of 2023 households receiving assets through the program increased from around 3 000 9% to 10 302 29% out of a target of 35 000 households through 49 contracted NGOs and two private hiring firms and the number of participants receiving a job has increased from 3 324 23% in August to 5 392 38% by end of November of 2023 out of a target of 14 314 households through 22 NGOs and two private firms

Allen IV, James, Gilligan, Daniel O., Kurdi, Sikandra, Yassa, Basma, 2025-01-22 We study households choice between continued cash transfers and a new economic inclusion program two global prevalent social protection programs offered by the Egyptian government Lower than expected early adoption of the new program is correlated with differing perceptions on its design We randomize official messaging to households describing the new program s i consumption support duration and ii income earning potential Both treatments increase respondents likelihood of recommending the new program A theoretical model estimated using households perceptions of program design predicts interest in the new program and how it diminishes with increasing effort costs asset loss probability risk aversion and loss aversion

Do ultra-poor graduation programs build resilience against droughts? Evidence from rural Ethiopia

Hirvonen, Kalle, Gilligan, Daniel O., Leight, Jessica, Tambet, Heleene, Villa, Victor, 2023-11-29 We study the role of a multifaceted ultra poor graduation program in protecting household wellbeing and women s welfare from the effects of localized droughts in Ethiopia We use data from a large experimental trial of an integrated livelihood and nutrition intervention that supplemented the consumption support provided by Ethiopia s Productive Safety Net Program PSNP conducted within a sample in which all households were beneficiaries of the PSNP We match three rounds of household survey data to detailed satellite weather data to identify community level exposure to droughts We then exploit random assignment to the graduation program to evaluate whether exposed households show heterogeneous effects of drought on household food security and livestock holdings women s diets and nutritional status and prevalence of intimate partner violence IPV We find that droughts have substantial negative effects on these outcomes but the intervention serves to consistently moderate these effects and for some outcomes particularly diets and nutrition and IPV the intervention fully protects households from any adverse drought affects A further analysis exploits variation across treatment arms that received different program elements and suggests that the primary mechanism is enhanced household savings Holistic Neurorehabilitation Pamela S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, 1968 Assessing Competence in Professional Performance across Disciplines and Professions Paul F. Wimmers, Marcia Mentkowski, 2016-04-19 This book examines the challenges of cross professional comparisons and proposes new forms of performance assessment to be used in professions education It addresses how complex issues are learned and assessed across and within different disciplines and professions in order to move the process of performance assessment for learning to the next level In order to be better equipped to cope with increasing complexity change and diversity in professional education and performance assessment administrators and educators will engage in crucial systems thinking The main question discussed by the book is how the required competence in the performance of students can be assessed during their professional education at both undergraduate and graduate levels To answer this question the book identifies unresolved issues and clarifies conceptual elements for performance assessment It reviews the development of constructs that cross disciplines and professions such as critical thinking clinical reasoning and problem solving It discusses what it means to instruct and assess students within their own domain of study and across various roles in multiple contexts but also what it means to instruct and assess students across domains of study in order to judge integration and transfer of learning outcomes Finally the book examines what it takes for administrators and educators to develop competence in assessment such as reliably judging student work in relation to criteria from multiple sources the co editors of this volume Marcia Mentkowski and Paul F Wimmers are associated with two institutions whose characters are so intimately associated with the insight that assessment must be integrated with curriculum and instructional program if it is to become a powerful influence on the educational process Lee Shulman Stanford University Fundamentals of Probability Saeed

Ghahramani,2024-05-27 Praise for the fourth edition This book is an excellent primer on probability The flow of the text aids its readability and the book is indeed a treasure trove of set and solved problems Dalia Chakrabarty Brunel University UK This textbook provides a thorough and rigorous treatment of fundamental probability including both discrete and continuous cases The book s ample collection of exercises gives instructors and students a great deal of practice and tools to sharpen their understanding Joshua Stangle University of Wisconsin Superior USA This one or two term calculus based basic probability text is written for majors in mathematics physical sciences engineering statistics actuarial science business and finance operations research and computer science It presents probability in a natural way through interesting and instructive examples and exercises that motivate the theory definitions theorems and methodology This book is mathematically rigorous and at the same time closely matches the historical development of probability Whenever appropriate historical remarks are included and the 2096 examples and exercises have been carefully designed to arouse curiosity and hence encourage students to delve into the theory with enthusiasm New to the Fifth Edition In this edition a significant change has been made in the order of material presentation The topics such as the joint probability mass function joint probability density functions independence of random variables sums of random variables the central limit theorem and certain other materials have been covered earlier in the book enabling students to grasp these crucial concepts from the start These changes have considerable merit particularly the idea of covering the celebrated central limit theorem immediately after discussing the normal distribution Additionally discussions on sigma fields are provided and an in depth section on characteristic functions is added The central limit theorem has been proven using both moment generating functions and characteristic functions In the present edition numerous new figures are included that were drawn for the first time specifically to aid in students understanding of the material These fresh illustrations along with all the previous ones in the book have been meticulously crafted by the technical support team at CRC Instructors who prefer the content arrangement used in previous editions can still teach the material in the same order as those editions Moreover the homepage of this book contains a whole chapter with comprehensive coverage on Stochastic Processes as well as additional contents for Chapters 1 to 10 such as extra examples supplementary topics and practical applications to facilitate in depth exploration Furthermore it offers thorough solutions for all self tests and self quiz problems empowering students to assess their progress and grasp of this demanding subject In this new edition at the end of select chapters sections are included dedicated to exploring approximate solutions for complex probabilistic problems using simulation techniques These simulations are conducted using the R software a powerful tool well suited for probabilistic simulations due to its extensive collection of built in functions and numerous specialized libraries designed for various simulation purposes In the homepage of the book a chapter titled Algorithm Driven Simulations is presented in which we delve deeply into the concept of simulation using algorithms exclusively without being tied to any specific programming language
