Electric Current

1. Water doesn't flow in the pipe when all ends are open at the same level. Another way of saying this is that water will not flow in the pipe when both ends have the same potential energy (PE). Similarly, charges will not flow in a conductor if both ends of the conductor are at the same electric potential. But if the water pipe has a bend that first goes down then back up, it'll reverse the ends of the pipe, so the water will flow. Similarly, connecting electric potential of one end of the circuit conductor to another is a potential difference across the ends, and charges will flow.

- a. The ends of electric potential difference are higher (higher) (lower) (same)
- b. Both conductors will electric potential difference potential (voltage) (current) (resistance)
- c. The flow of electric charges is called electric current (voltage) (resistance) (power), and is measured in amperes (volts) (ohms) (watts)

2. Complete the statements.

- a. A current of 1 ampere is a flow of charges at the rate of 1 coulombs per second.
- b. When a charge of 12 C flows through the wire in a circuit each second, the current is 12 A.
- c. One volt is the potential difference between two points if 1 joule of energy is needed to move 1 coulomb of charge between the two points.
- d. When a lamp is plugged into a 120-V outlet, each coulomb of charge that flows in the circuit is converted to potential energy of 120 joules.
- e. Metals allow more electrons to move flow, a wide pipe or a narrow pipe? wide. Similarly, metals allow more electrons to flow (if charge is there) whereas that metal resists.
