Process that consists of five steps to follow for a purposeful, goal directed, systematic way to achieve optimal client outcomes.

Assessment/data collection
Analysis/data collection
Planning
Implementation
Evaluation

Underlying Principles

Assessment/data collection involves collection of information about clients' present health. Nurses use critical thinking skills, interpret or monitor the collected database, reach an appropriate nursing judgment about health status and coping mechanisms.

When planning client care (RN) or contributing to a client's plan of care (PN), nurses must establish priorities and optimal outcomes of care they can readily measure and evaluate.

Implementation, nurses base the care they provide on assessment data, analyses, and the plan of care they developed in the previous steps of the nursing process.

Evaluation; nurses evaluate

Nursing Interventions

WHO? WHEN? WHY? HOW?

Work with the patient with therapeutic communication techniques to achieve the goal of their overall physical and mental health.

"Did the client meet the planned outcomes?"

Ensure there's a complete database of information to achieve goal.

Provide realistic outcomes and expectations.

Writing on the Wall Philip Van Notten, 2005 Although the significance of 9 11 is subject to debate it is symbolic of a general sentiment of discontinuity whereby society is vulnerable to undefined and highly disruptive events Recent catalysts of this sentiment are eye catching developments such as the SARS Severe Acute Respiratory Syndrome and bird flu outbreaks the Enron and Parmalat scandals political assassinations in Sweden and the Netherlands regime changes in Iraq and Afghanistan and terrorist attacks in Bali Istanbul Madrid and various parts of the Middle East However recent discontinuities should not be seen as evidence that discontinuities occur more frequently now than they did before Looking back in history we see that disruptive processes are common For example 25 years ago few Europeans would have predicted the upcoming upheavals on their own continent the collapse of communism Berlin as the capital of a reunited Germany the wars in the former Yugoslavia the single European currency and the near doubling of the number of European Union member states Changes elsewhere have been no less discontinuous and unforeseen the fall of the Asian tigers the emergence of the Internet and mobile telecommunication and the presidency of Nelson Mandela Societal discontinuity is a relatively new area of concern in policy development Since the 1970s the consideration of change and discontinuity has gained some ground over predictive forecasting which tended to reason from continuous developments and linear processes Rather than making forecasting the future it has become popular to use scenarios as a manner to consider several possible futures Scenarios are coherent descriptions of alternative hypothetical futures that reflect different perspectives on past present and future developments which can serve as a basis for action Scenario development aims to combine analytical knowledge with creative thinking in an effort to capture a wide range of possible future developments in a limited number of outlooks Scenario development assumes that the future is uncertain and the directions in which current developments might range from the conventional to the revolutionary In theory scenario development is a way to consider future discontinuity However there are indications that the theoretical promise is not reflected in scenario practice Research has shown that scenarios do not consider the idea of discontinuity as a matter of course In our research we found that a scenario study would benefit from efforts to create and foster a culture of curiosity for exploring the future and the possible discontinuities rather than simply commissioning a scenario study to provide insights about the future Only then can one read the writing on the wall of future developments

The Decentring of the Traditional University provides a unique perspective on the implications of media change for learning and literacy that allows us to peer into the future of self education Each chapter draws on socio cultural and activity theory to investigate how resourceful students are breaking away from traditional modes of instruction and educating themselves through engagement with a globally interconnected web based participatory culture The argument is developed with reference to the findings of an ethnographic study that focused on university students informal uses of social and participatory media Each chapter draws attention to the shifting locus of agency for regulating and managing learning and describes an emergent genre of learning activity For example Francis explores how students are cultivating and nurturing globally distributed funds of living knowledge that transcend institutional boundaries and describes students learning through serious play in virtually figured worlds that support radically personalised lifelong learning agendas These stories also highlight the challenges and choices learners confront as they struggle to negotiate the faultlines of media convergence and master the new media literacies required to exploit the full potential of Web 2 0 as a learning resource Overall this compelling argument proposes that we are witnessing a period of historic systemic change in the culture of university learning as an emergent web based participatory culture starts to disrupt and displace a top down culture industry model of education that has evolved around the medium of the book As a result Francis argues that we need to re conceive higher education as an identity project in which students work on their projective identities or imagined future selves through engagement with both formal and informal learning activities

Theoretical Nursing Afaf Ibrahim Meleis, 2011 An additional assumption was that the processes for theory development were new to nursing and hence nurses in graduate programs learned strategies for advancing knowledge from other disciplines This assumption was debunked with the knowledge that nurses were always engaged in knowledge development driven by their experiences in clinical practice Because of these assumptions most of the early writing about theory development was about outlining strategies that should be used rather than strategies that have already been used in the discipline to develop theories Theorists themselves did not uncover or adequately discuss ways by which they developed their theories therefore the tendency was to describe processes that were based on theories developed in other disciplines mainly the physical and social sciences And an implicit assumption was made that there should be a single strategy for theory development some claiming to begin the process from practice and others believing it should be driven by research Provided by publisher      Clinical Reasoning in the Health Professions
