Toomey,M.H. Nitecki,2012-12-06 Prior to the 3rd International Symposium on Fossil Algae held in Golden Colorado in August of 1983 a 3 day fieldtrip concentrating on Recent algal distribution in southern Florida was led by Robert N Ginsburg and his associates from Miami A post symposium fieldtrip to the West Texas southern New Mexico region was led by Don Toomey and Jack Babcock This fieldtrip examined Precambrian and Paleozoic algal carbonates in a region characterized by superb outcrop exposures and included the famous Permian Reef complex The Toomey Babcock fieldtrip resulted in a unique fieldguide published by the Colorado School of Mines 1983 and issued to all participants of the symposium The symposium itself was held from August 15 through August 17 on the campus of the Colorado School of Mines where Professor J Harlan Johnson to whose memory this volume is dedicated spent so much of his career studying fossil algae The symposium sessions were held for 3 days and during that time 40 papers were presented and discussed A 1 day fieldtrip led by John L Wray to examine Late Paleozoic phylloid algal carbonates exposed in the nearby Rocky Mountains concluded the formal meetings Craft Theory and Contemporary Architecture Grant Alford,2025-05-28 This book offers a comprehensive exploration of craft theory in relation to contemporary architecture Craft is an old and familiar idea but the line between craft and art or craft and mere manufacturing for example is notoriously hard to describe In architecture a similarly blurred line between the design process on one hand and the physical making of buildings on the other lies at the center of various debates about what it means to do architecture The growth and development of craft theory in recent years suggest new insights into these architectural debates but situating the meaning of craft within architecture within today s technological landscape is a complex problem Alford responds to this challenge by collecting various narratives from craft theory and other fields and discerning among them new lenses through which to view contemporary architectural practice Episodes from this expanded view of craft in architecture go beyond predictable accounts of Ruskin and Morris to envision new models of practice new ways of engaging other building professionals and new ways for architects to understand their own labor and the nature of how and what kinds of things they themselves craft Architecture is changing and within the ongoing story of craft explored in this book are new and surprising ways to understand design and construct the built environment Written for students and scholars this book challenges and extends the legacy of craft thinking in architecture
