The Fig Eater by Jody Shields Judi T. Kiraly,2002 The Fig Eater Jody Shields,2015-11-26 He watches her eating one fig then two more grinding the seeds between her teeth the sound echoing in her head perhaps the last sound Dora heard before there was the thunder of blood in her ears Vienna 1910 On a warm August night the body of a young girl is discovered in the city s celebrated Volksgarten She has been strangled Using the latest forensic methods and psychological thinking the Chief Inspector of Police begins his painstaking search for the killer He is not alone however His wife Ersz bet an exotic passionate woman steeped in the folk tales and Gypsy lore of her native Hungary becomes obsessed with the dead girl In secret and enlisting the help of a young English governess she conducts her own investigation of the murder guided by intuition instinct and superstition With its beautifully evoked setting of Vienna just prior to the Great War a city embracing the modern and yet in thrall to superstition and prejudice and riven by corruption perverse sexual practices and disease The Fig Eater is a rich and seductive period page turner of a novel From Modernist Entombment to Postmodernist

Exhumation Lisa K. Perdigao,2016-04-22 How fictional representations of dead bodies develop over the twentieth century is the central concern of Lisa K Perdigao s study of American writers Arguing that the crisis of bodily representation can be traced in the move from modernist entombment to postmodernist exhumation Perdigao considers how works by writers from F Scott Fitzgerald William Faulkner Willa Cather and Richard Wright to Jody Shields Toni Morrison Octavia Butler and Jeffrey Eugenides reflect changing attitudes about dying death and mourning For example while modernist writers direct their plots toward a transformation of the dead body by way of metaphor postmodernist writers exhume the transformed body reasserting its materiality Rather than viewing these tropes in oppositional terms Perdigao examines the implications for narrative of the authors apparently contradictory attempts to recover meaning at the site of loss She argues that entombment and exhumation are complementary drives that speak to the tension between the desire to bury the dead and the need to remember indicating shifts in critical discussions about the body and about the function of aesthetics in relation to materialized violence and loss The Publishers Weekly ,2001 Mirabella ,1999 A Different Plain Ladette
